John L. and Mitchell
A Suicide's Lament
Ask Him for an Option
$1 Becomes $1,000
—By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1927, by Star Co.)

FIGHTING has changed. On March 10, 1888, this writer saw John L. Sullivan and Charles Mitchell fight in a muddy, slippery twenty-four-foot ring on Baron Rothschild's training grounds near Chantilly in France. It was not like arrangements for tomorrow's fight.

Thirty or forty men stood around the ring. One was Billy Porter, the bank burglar, who afterward died in the German salt mines. He had a revolver in each overcoat pocket, and notified those in Mitchell's corner that Sullivan was to have fair play. Sullivan got it.

The men fought with bare fists soaked in walnut juice, and had long spikes on their shoes.

Sullivan requested Mitchell to "be a gentleman, you ——— ——— if you can," when Mitchell drove a spike into Sullivan's instep.

The fight was under London Prize Ring rules, each round ending when either man went down with one knee on the ground. No gate receipts, no purse, only a side bet.

When the fight ended in a draw, both men were locked up by French gendarmes at Senlis, bombarded by Germans. This writer saw them there. The French jailer had taken away their silk handkerchiefs "to prevent their hanging themselves." Both wept. Both are dead. What would they think of a modern fight with $3,500,000 gate receipts?

Frederick Gastler, a teacher of languages, killed himself, leaving written in correct Latin this: "I am nobody, I never was anybody."

That could be said truly in many languages by 999,999 people in a million. With few exceptions, nobody is anybody. We are human microbes, doing work for which we were put on earth, then disappearing.

A microbe has no right to expect that he will ever be anybody, but the fact that he is nobody is no excuse for suicide.

Mr. J. J. Mitchell, able and conservative Chicago financier, who says stocks are too high, does not like "the antics" of the market.

Ask Mr. Mitchell what he would charge for one year's option on 10,000 shares of General Motors, for instance.

Every well-managed, necessary American concern is selling for less than it is worth. Ten years hence the country's wealth will be scores of billions greater than today, and that increased wealth will be reflected in prices of good securities.

Speaking of American wealth increases, the Chase National Bank dug out of an old vault Please Turn to Page 7, Column 4.

SECOND OF SIAMESE TWINS STRICKEN

LIVES OF LINKED GIRLS IMPERILLED ANEW BY SUDDEN TURN IN CASE

By FRANCES L. BAIRD.

Holyoke, Sept. 21.—A flight change for the worse in the condition of one of the "Siamese Twins" today launched anew the fight to block pneumonia or influenza infection from spreading to the other of the 15-year-old girls.

Just as the doctors believed they had turned the tide of Mary Gibbs' malady, the battle began to save Margaret, who said she did not feel as well as yesterday.

Margaret's temperature was 99 today while that of the sister, who has been fighting on the brink of death and threatening to drag Margaret with her, registered 99.4.

As a result, Miss Clara Thompson, working under direction of Dr. E. P. Bagg, was taking every precaution to check the spread of the ailment.

Margaret has been very quiet during Mary's illness, realizing the terrible consequences should her twin sister continue to grow worse.

Both know what the serious illness of one means to the other, said Miss Thompson.

Since yesterday Margaret has not left room. Likes talking on matter encouragement.

The doctor is pleased with Mary's condition and does not expect Margaret's succumbing to the same disease.

Mrs. John R. Gibbs, the mother, is confident the rugged constitutions of both girls will withstand onslaughts of the malady. However, she is staying close beside their bed, watching every change. The slightest noise disturbs them and may cause lowered vitality. No visitors

FIGHT SEAT SALE HAS TAKEN ON NEW SPURT; EXPECT 150,000 FANS

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Chicago, Sept. 21.—Ticket swindling, special police precautions to guard Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey, a tremendous inrush of fight fans from all parts of the country and prohibition raids on disorderly places, contributed today to the teeming undercurrent of excitement that has gripped Chicago as the opening round of the Tunney-Dempsey

GIRL OF 22 OFFERS TO WED DOOMED MURDERER

Springfield, Sept. 21.—Out of a death cell at Houston, Tex., the cry of a condemned man for a mate with whom he can communicate after death has been made—and has been answered by a Springfield girl of twenty-two years.

From his cell on October 14, A. V. Milliken, thirty-eight, will take his last walk, a walk that will end in oblivion, but before that time he wants some girl to marry him in the death house and, after his execution, to answer his messages from the spirit world.

Reading his appeal in a New York newspaper, Miss Florence Parker of No. 445 Hancock street answered Milliken's letter, and although it

SEPARATE AIR CABINET IS FAVORED BY LEGION

Paris, Sept. 21 (I. N. S.).—The American Legion convention today adopted a resolution recommending the creation of a separate department of aviation in the United States government, presided over by an individual cabinet head, "as soon as is warranted."

The adoption of the resolution ended a stormy battle on the convention floor precipitated by the presentation of the annual report of the national standing committee on aeronautics, favoring such a stand by the convention.

Former Brig.-General William Mitchell, long a storm centre in the American army air service, and his friends fought strenuously for the

RULES BOOTLEG CAN RETAIN AUTO LICENSE

A conviction on the charge of bootlegging is not sufficient reason for revocation of an automobile license.

This was decided today by the State Board of Appeal in turning down an appeal made by the Travelers' Insurance Company for revocation of the license of Edwin O. Woods of Plainville, because he was recently convicted of keeping and exposing intoxicating liquor.

The insurance company contended that the character of Woods is such that the interests of the traveling public might suffer if he got into an automobile accident. Woods, in answer to a question put by Registrar Frank A. Goodwin, declared he had never been in a motor accident.

In rejecting the company's plea, Insurance Commissioner Wesley E. Monk warned Woods in these words:

"If you know what's good for you don't come here again if you get into further trouble."

TRUCK DERAILS ENGINE; DRIVER PROBABLY DYING

Milford, N. H., Sept. 21.—A heavy loaded truck derailed a locomotive in a grade-crossing collision here today. The driver of the truck was probably fatally injured while passengers and train crew were shaken up.

The locomotive, drawing a train from Keene to Nashua on the Boston & Maine Railroad, crashed into the truck at Richardson's Crossing. The truck was loaded with logs.

William Tully, the driver, had one leg cut off at the knee and received severe head injuries. He was rushed to Nashua Hospital.

'JIMMIE' GALLAGHER AS FIRE HERO; 3 RESCUED

Overcome by smoke from a fire which threatened their new home at No. 42 Goodwin avenue, Revere, early today, Mrs. "Jimmie" Gallagher, wife of the orchestra leader and radio entertainer, and her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Waldron, were rescued from probable death by the timely arrival of Jimmie and his friends.

The fire started in the kitchen of the house and dense smoke spread to the upper bedrooms, overcoming the occupants. "Jimmie" and his chauffeur, Jerry Rizzo, and Roy Carlson, banjo player in the Gallagher orchestra, discovered the blaze on their arrival at 1:30.

Mrs. Gallagher was rescued by her husband, while Rizzo and Carlson carried the unconscious forms of Mr. and Mrs. Waldron to safety. An alarm was turned in and Dr. Ralph Heywood summoned to attend the victims.

Mrs. Gallagher had suffered most from the smoke and it was some

DODGER BERGDOLL IS TRYING TO COME BACK

Washington, Sept. 21 (U.N.S.).—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, the Philadelphia draft dodger, is seeking a way to re-enter the United States from Germany, where he fled after the war, it was learned at the State Department today.

John E. Kehl, American consul at Stuttgart, reported to the department that he had received a letter from Bergdoll, written from Holminden, Germany, asking what steps he would have to take to get back to this country. Kehl asked for instructions. A reply is being drafted.

Federal authorities have announced they would prosecute Bergdoll if he ever returned.

HOLYOKE'S SIAMESE TWINS CONTINUE BATTLE FOR LIVES

SECOND OF SISTERS IS STRICKEN

are permitted to see them.

With the country's interest centered upon them since the word was flashed forth of their critical condition, the sisters from their bed sent out an appreciation of the many messages showered upon them from everywhere.

Mr. and Mrs. Gibbs both showed the effects of their hours of solicitude over the fate of their twins; both have been sleepless in their attention to every need of the sick room.

It was a dramatic race with death. The twins, who will be sixteen years old next May, sensed the peril of the serious illness that came suddenly upon Mary. A slight cold contracted a week ago developed into the "flu" almost overnight. And it was the violent type of influenza.

When Mary complained, Margaret also seemed to have a chill; but the latter did not become seriously ill at any time. Then pneumonia hovered near for Mary; and it was Margaret at her side that held her hand, and cheered her with brave words.

Because long ago physicians and surgeons who had examined them at Boston hospitals, had declared that an operation to separate them in case of the death of one was impossible, Margaret realized that the death of her sister would mean her death.

With the parents, too, it was certain sure knowledge that pneumonia for one would actually be a threat of death for both. So, though only Mary was critically ill, yet Margaret's fate was so interwoven with Mary's that the disease that faced Mary in reality also brought death close to Margaret.

Side by side, the twins lay, Mary fighting with all the will power she had, and Margaret giving her constant care and aid.

During the "flu" epidemic nine years ago it was Margaret who suffered most, and Mary who did the cheering at her side. Today the tables are turned, and it is Mary that is the sick patient.

The twins are favorites with stage and radio audiences. They have appeared in pupitis, speaking and singing—[illegible] all over the country.

Together they weigh 230 pounds. Up to the recent illness, both enjoyed perfect health. Though the doctors say their spinal mechanism is connected, their mental processes are entirely distinct. Mary is the more pensive. Margaret the livelier nature. Margaret is far more musical than her sister. The strongest affection binds them; for hours they will hold one another's hands, often their kiss, always they are on the best of terms with one another. It is said they never had a quarrel.

Most famous of all living twins, the Gibbs girls, inseparable both physically and in their abiding love for one another, came into public notice when they first saw the light of day. Medical science became interested. Doctors investigated, conferred, debated.

They were born at the Holyoke city hospital fifteen years and four months ago. Doctors at the time discussed the possibility of an operation to sever the flesh which bound them together. But after long study the doctors came to the conclusion that the vital link could not be severed without disastrous result.

(Follow the story of this remarkable battle for life. All the details will appear in the Boston Evening American.)

was one of scores received, the convict picked Miss Parker as the girl for a dead man's wife.

JOKES ABOUT JEALOUSY.

Millikin will be electrocuted for shooting to death his real estate partner, Mrs. Virginia Petty, during a ride in her automobile.

To newspapermen at Houston today Millikin said:

"Miss Parker seems to be just the sort of wife I am looking for, and she will never doubt me or become jealous even if I am going a long way from home, to be gone a long time."

Millikin, who is a huge, strapping man, declared that he will attempt a pre-sale of his body to some medical school for money enough to defray the Springfield girl's expenses to Houston.

Then, he said, when the marriage has been performed, he will petition the Governor for permission to have the bride with him on his last night alive.

DEATH CELL HONEYMOON.

"It would be just ironical enough to please me," he said. "It would be the first honeymoon I ever spent in a death cell."

But Millikin hasn't heard yet that Miss Parker, a bit abashed and frightened at the suddenness with which she has been placed in the limelight, declared today that she wrote her letter of response more as a joke than anything else.

"I saw the article telling of Millikin's asking for a wife," she said, "and I knew that a lot of girls would write him. I never expected to be chosen."

Hunt Cambridge Fire Fiend in $30,000 Blaze

A firebug's hand today laid waste the mansion of Edward L. Bennett, treasurer of the C. D. Parker Company, banking house of Boston, at No. 33 Garden street, Cambridge. The house was not occupied. Damage to the building was set at more than $30,000.

The fire, according to Clark Bennett, brother of the owner, and vice-president of the Metropolitan Ice Company, was the climax to many acts of vandalism that had occurred on the premises during the last few months.

Priceless works of art went up in smoke and practically all of the furnishings were either burned or ruined by water or smoke.

The fire was discovered by Arthur Floyd, 18, of No. 16 Sutherland street, Arlington, and Arthur Cloyd, 21, of No. 346 Massachusetts avenue, Arlington, who were passing along Massachusetts avenue, three blocks distant, when they were attracted by a pall of smoke that emanated from the Bennett home.

They found the front door open. In the library, they told the police, two distinct fires were raging, both in large bookcases. The second floor was also in flames.

The Bennett family was to return from their summer home in Brookfield some day this week, according to Bennett's brother. No one but they had a key to the house, he said, and there was no caretaker

20 PURCELL IN WARD 19 FIGHT

A second Purcell entered the City Council fight in Ward 19, Mayor Nichols' home ward, today and politicians viewed this as evidence that the administration was beat on—

Electing a Republican in this ward.

Electing a Republican more friendly to the administration than the present incumbent, Horace Guild.

The new candidate is James F. A. Purcell, a Democrat, who was ousted by ex-Mayor James M. Curley as a precinct warden because he signed a "Fuller-for-Governor" advertisement during the Fuller-Curley contest.

It is believed his candidacy may take votes from James T. Purcell, former councillor and prominent figure in city politics. James F. A. Purcell was never before a candidate for public elective office.

A rumor is in circulation that the nomination papers of several Ward 19 candidates may eventually be turned over to the credit of William J. Marple of Roslindale, Republican, who is not at present an avowed candidate.

The candidates, other than those previously mentioned, are Daniel Thompson and John J. Bird, Republicans; Peter A. Murray, James E. Finigan, Stephen H. Duffy, Bernard C. Dwyer, Francis J. McLaughlin and George L. Burke, Democrats. No party designation will appear on the ballots.

Took to Drink to Drown Out His Snoring Guest

Batavia, N. Y., Sept. 21 (I.N.S.).—Driven to drink because his guest snored.

This explanation was made by Robert Strowbridge, charged with non-support and drunkenness by his wife, today was granted time in which to redeem himself.

"To begin with, your honor," Strowbridge said, "my daughter has been keeping company with a fellow who couldn't work and moved into our house, trunk and all.

"He snores so loud he keeps me awake and that is why I took to drink."

The defendant wiped his eyes. Some say the judge did, too.

"Robert," said the judge, "You shake hands with your wife and go home. If your guest continues to snore just turn him over on his side."

ERIN TO STICK TO COSGRAVE

Dublin, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—President Cosgrave's Free State Government, despite the disappointing outcome of the parliamentary elections, intends to carry on with the expectation of at least a year of life. In making this announcement, Ernest Blythe, Vice-President of the council, stated that a new loan will be floated in December.

The ministers, all of whom were re-elected, are confident, it may be taken from this, that when the new Dail convenes on October 11 it will approve the continuance of Mr. Cosgrave as President of the council and that he will accept the mandate.

Ancient Cave-Man Contrast ~ Brute Power vs. Brute Brain ~ Seen in Ringside Battlers

JACK CALLED FIGHTER LIKE PRIMAL MAN

Dempsey is pictured by anthropological students of the fistic game as an elemental ringside battler, depending upon brute strength, like the Cave-Man of 20,000 years ago. His ancestor's jaw was toughened by nature against clubs; Jack has inherited the same protection that defies the blows of the heaviest hitters.

INFLUENCE OF ENVIRONMENT

Upon evolution. The students take this term to describe the sweet influence of Estelle Taylor, Jack's wife. Had Jack not risen above the environment of his tramp days he would probably be unweakened and unbeatable today.

TUNNEY DECLARED PRIMAL MAN PLUS BRAIN

Homo sapiens is the expression the students use in qualifying the Cave-Man type seen in Tunney's method of fighting. His brain is his defense, Tunney's prototype used his brain to protect himself against the foes, with a corresponding loosening in the ability to withstand punishment.

FILM NOTABLES WILL SEE BIG RING BATTLE

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—I am not going to emulate the sport writer and hand out any prophecy on the result of the Dempsey-Tunney bout tomorrow night. I don't want to spend the rest of my life furnishing an alibi. Besides, that is not the reason my boss sent me all the way from the coast to write about this little boxing match.

I have always envied and been somewhat amazed at the latitude given these sport writers. What would happen in the movies if we printed half the colorful tales these gentlemen write about the fighters? Can't you see for instance if we said that Douglas Fairbanks would outsell any Harold Lloyd picture and then Harold's picture brought in more money than the Fairbanks film. An alibi would be useless.

Last year I consulted at least a dozen fight authorities in Philadelphia. They all told me that Jack Dempsey would make Gene Tunney look like an airplane after it has dropped 10,000 feet from the sky. All year these same gifted scribes have been explaining why they picked the wrong man.

They just about convinced the world that they were only fooling about Dempsey, when along came the Sharkey-Dempsey fight.

Put all the family bankroll on the terrible Sharkey all of them whispered. Dempsey hasn't a Chinaman's chance. Moreover, my dozen confidantes all uttered their belief in the public prints that Dempsey would take the count long before the final round.

Their explanations are still being made.

So I shall profit and play safe. I

GRILLED

Willis Beach, poultryman and friend of Dr. William Lillendahl slain in New Jersey, has been questioned several times.

COLLAPSES AT MORGUE

Mrs. Margaret Lilliendahl collapsed when she identified the body of the Vineland, N. J., slaying mystery victim. The widow is out on $25,000 bail as a material witness. She is shown with her son Alfred and her attorney, Charles M. Phillips.

SLAIN DOCTOR'S WILL LEFT ALL TO HIS WIFE

Hammonton, N. J., Sept. 21 (A.P.).—A will said to have been made in favor of his wife two months before he was slain, and a missing revolver were developments in the investigation of the murder of Dr. A. William Lilliendahl, to which the authorities turned their attention today.

Withdrawals from a joint bank account in the name of his wife and himself and the opening of a separate account by the elderly retired physician a little over a month ago was another disclosure made by the investigators.

Mrs. Lillendahl is under $25,000 bail as a material witness in connection with the murder.

Dean MacGeorge, a real estate broker from whom Dr. Lillendahl purchased his cottage in South Vineland, told the police the doctor had written his will himself and that he and a stenographer in his office had signed it as attesting witnesses. The value of the estate was not revealed. MacGeorge said that Dr. Lillendahl had left "everything" to his wife.

Statements said to have been made by 8-year-old Alfred Lillendahl, son of Dr. and Mrs. Lillendahl, led the police to believe that one of the doctor's pistols was missing.

Two revolvers were found at the Lillendahl home, but County Detective Frank Juliano stated that a third, which the boy told him he had seen around the house, had not been found.

COSTS GIRL $25 TO LET BROTHER DRIVE

The man was captured after a chase by three employes of the Chandler Automobile Company, when detected stealing a tire from a car in the rear of automobile row at St. Paul street and Commonwealth avenue.

Isadora Saved Child Dancers From Fire

THE LIFE AND LOVES OF ISADORA DUNCAN.

Chapter 6.

DURING her teaching days in New York, Isadora was installed with her mother and her sister, Elizabeth, at the Windsor Hotel on Fifth avenue. The hotel occupied the entire block front from 46th to 47th street, on the eastern side of the avenue.

It was a favorite residence for a number of permanent guests, and was also much in demand for transient accommodations, handy as it was to the old Grand Union station. The building was of a type of construction considered fairly modern for the period, and was equipped with elevators.

U.S. DENOUNCES BIAS IN BREWER MURDER TRIAL

Washington, Sept. 21 (A.P.)—Urgent representations for intervention by Mexican Federal authorities in the trial at Guadelajara growing out of the murder of Arthur Brewer of Boston, on June 1, have been made to the foreign office by the American Embassy in Mexico City on instructions from the State Department.

The department has informed the Mexican Government that it has reason to believe there will be a miscarriage of justice unless the Federal authorities investigate proceedings of the local court.

Brewer was shot and fatally wounded while in the office in Guadalajara of the mining company with which he was connected. He died the next day.

GIRL SMASHES AUTO, FLEES WITH 2 MEN

Swerving from the road on Broadway, Revere, near the International highway, an automobile driven by an unidentified girl and with two men in the rear seat crashed into a gasoline station pump today, carromed into a ditch and tipped over.

The three occupants scrambled to their feet as watchers gasped in amazement, and before anyone could learn who they were, they hailed a passing car and rode toward Lynn, the direction whence they had just come.

Michael Collucci, owner of the gasoline station, narrowly escaped being struck by the car before it plunged into the ditch just beyond where he was standing. The pump was smashed.

Revere police got the number of the car and are seeking the owner and the girl driver.

Legion Wins Paris by 'Sartorial Diplomacy'

Paris, Sept. 21 (A.P.)—America's 20,000 ambassadors of the American Legion are doing their work well and nobly.

As the Legion convention with its attendant festivities progresses smoothly and without hitch, the unanimous effect of their instinctive and unpremeditated diplomacy becomes more and more apparent.

"They have made an enforgetable impression—one that nothing can efface" a plain every-day Parisian told the correspondent.

A small but significant detail which helps the French to a realization of this is the fact that the legionnaires fit right into the Parisian picture. They have eschewed the plus fours, lurid pullover sweaters and other sartorial eccentricities affected by many Anglo-Saxon tourists, which never fail to raise a smile among the Parisians.

They are neatly clad in plain well-fitting business suits, and but for their legion caps are indistinguishable in the streets from the Frenchmen. The same applies in equal degree to the Legion womenfolk, whose tailored suits are just what the well-dressed Parisiennes wear.

Legionaires Are Glad They Took Their Wives to Paris

Paris, Sept. 21 (A.P.)—Having their women folk with them at their Paris convention has not only failed to cramp the style of the men of the American Legion, but has been their greatest triumph.

"I have sa. - many times and I say it again that the smartest thing the legion ever did was to bring our women folk with us to Paris," sa'l National Commander Howard P. Savage, at today's session.

"All our lives we will be talking about the wonderful reception we had in France," he added.

LOUELLA PLAYS SAFE ON EPIC RING BATTLE

am superstitious, I won't say who will win the fight. Who do I want to win? Just a minute, Hollywood is my home. Also the home Jack and Estelle Taylor, who are popular with the movie colony.

"Listen to the additional movie folk who are on their way to Chicago this morning. Douglas MacLean, Thomas and Francis Meighan, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Schenck, Lawrence Gray, Jack Conway, director of the famous Jackie, Jack Warner, Al Jolson, Fred Thompson, Lewis Stone, Herbert Brenon, J. C. Burr, Al Cohn, L. Chadwick and many others.

"If a woman's intuition means anything, then Estelle Taylor has already picked the winner in the Dempsey-Tunney battle. Estelle is so confident that Jack will win that she will all smiles when I saw her at her apartment in the Edgewater Beach Hotel.

"'You know' she said, "I have always bragged that I am psychic, that I have strange success in looking into the future. I can only see success ahead for Jack, when he enters the ring Thursday night.

"You can remember how nervous and doubtful I was when he fought with Sharkey. I have none of those fears now. If I did Jack would soon dissel them. Wait until you see him. He is so cocky and so sure of himself. He looks marvelous, he isn't harrassed and disturbed as he was when he met Tunney in Philadelphia. He knows that he is going to victory and no one can put even the shadow of fear in his mind."

SENDS THOUGHT MESSAGES.

"Mind means everything, too," Estelle went on. "I shall sit in this room and concentrate Thursday night. I don't want anyone with me but Miss Watson, my nurse, because I want to give Jack every thought—that is one thing that will help him. Perhaps it sounds silly, but sh I believe so firmly in sending thought messages to those you love.

"And if your intuition is wrong and he doesn't win," I suggested.

"Then I shall say it is the right thing. It won't make any difference in my love for Jack, you know that,' she replied, "But it means so much to him to get back the world's championship that I would be a poor wife if I did'nt want him to get the thing that makes him happiest." It isn't the money he wants, but the crown and he has a chance now it is possible to come back.

I couldn't help thinking of what Estelle said when she was revived from her fainting spell the night Jack knocked Sharkey out in the seventh round.

"I do hope," she said between her sobs, "that he hasn't hurt Mr. Sharkey too much."

Will Estelle again be able to say, "I hope he hasn't hurt Mr. Tunney too much?"

She believes that when Jack returns to her at the Edgewater Beach Hotel immediately after the fight Thursday night that she will welcome a conquering hero. If the Gene Tunney followers who have bet their bank roll on the ex-marine could hear Mrs. Jack Dempsey talk they would change their bets pronto.

ESTELLE ISN'T WORRIED.

Just to show that Estelle isn't worried she said, after we finished discussing Jack's black tights trimmed in crimson that he will wear in the ring and Jack's fitness for the coming battle:

"Want to see my new clothes? The Chicago shops are wonderful. I have bought a lot of new dresses here and you will see they are just as smart as the New York styles."

Women are always feminine even on the eve of a great battle. Perhaps that is what makes them so charming—and Estelle is an engaging young person with her dark eyes, her smiles and her manner of talking about prize fights. She is so feminine that even when she discusses her husband battling as a pugilist, someway she never seems actually a part of his career as a prize fighter.

Yet in her small hands she really holds Jack's success for he is so much in love with her that what she says, does, and thinks is of overwhelming importance.

If her intuition is right that her husband will regain his title there will be no one any happier than Estelle, who is really in love with Jack Dempsey the man—not the prize fighter.

LEGION VOTES FOR SEPARATE AIR CABINET

elimination of the clause "as soon as is warranted," but the convention voted down his objections by a vote of 622 to 299.

UPHOLDS MITCHELL.

Former Governor McGovern of Wisconsin, supporting Mitchell, denounced the words "as soon as is warranted" as a "waste of words."

Considerable debate preceded the vote on the resolution, and for a time things ran high. Floyd Woolley of Washington, D. C., created a furore by charging the aeronautics committee with bringing in a report "packed" by assistant secretary of war, Hanford Mac Nider, and other War Department conservatives.

Brig.-General Roy Hoffman of Ohio, former chairman of the aeronautics committee heatedly denied Woolley's charge.

Delegate Gilligan of Ohio restored peace by moving that Woolley's charges be stricken from the record, which was done.

Mitchell, speaking from the platform, declared that the United States army and navy heads are getting their inspiration from the past, and that they are blind to the future.

BARES VARIED LINEUP.

The vote revealed a varied lineup on the dispute, Illinois voted solidly against Mitchell, and New York voted just as solidly for him. The Ohio, Indiana, California, New Jersey and Pennsylvania delegations split.

The resolution put the Legion on record as favoring the consolidation of all branches of national defense into one department, with individual secretaries for each branch, the army, navy and aviation.

Legion Votes to Meet in San Antonio in 1928

Paris, Sept. 21 (A.P.)—The selection of San Antonio, Texas, for the 1928 convention of the American Legion by the legion's committee was approved by the convention here today.

The uninterrupted series of festivities arranged for the vets is telling more and more on the members of the legio. as the convention proceeds.

When Commander Savage called the meeting to order today there was still only a sprinkling of delegates present. The Rev. LeRoy D. Cross in the invocation prayed that the legionnaires might go home having proved themselves worthy of the affectionate reception extended them by Paris.

In the name of the French Association des Croix de Guerre, Admiral Guerratte presented to the legion a banner in the French colors with a crovaite of the Stars and Stripes.

"Whatever name you give it—banner, flag, pavilion or standard," he said, "this emblem represents the soul of the fighting men. It is symbolic of the outpouring of French hearts to the legionnaires, to the American."

Speaking a few words in English, he added: "The young American army had some of the purest taste in the war. After Cantigny, Chateau Thierry and St. Mihiel, it stormed the formidable Hindenburg line.

"Honor and glory to the American army! Death for the Stars and Stripes forever!"

As the delegates bounded to their feet, cheering, the venerable seaman, standing straight as a sycamore, saluted and kissed the banner.

Then the most moving tableau of the convention thus far was presented when Mme. Guesgratte, dressed in white, came forward with her uniformed husband stood at attention with the red, white and blue banner between them.

Miss Evangeline Booth, commander of the Salvation Army in the United States, was given an ovation equal to that which greeted Admiral Guerratte when she rose to speak.

"Language is inadequate to express my emotions," she said. "Pathetic, heart-stirring expressions of appreciation have come to us from mothers and fathers of soldier boys, but the words of gratitude which are treasured the most tenderly and deeply in my heart are those that have come from the men who wore the khaki on the bleeding fields of France."

Gold Star Mother Stirs French in Radio Speech

Paris, Sept. 21 (A.P.)—The myriads of French radio users who are following the activities of the Legion from easy chairs in their homes were moved last night by an address broadcast by Mrs. William H. Schofield of Peterboro, N. H. representing the gold star mothers of the Legion auxiliary.

"Ten years have intervened since the great exodus began which brought the men and women of our country to you," she said in part. "To those who rem.'n it has been a dream that some day they would return to the scenes so indelibly associated with the common suffering and sacrifice of their allies, and with the united effort resulting in the victory so triumphantly achieved.

"To thousands today the dream has come true. It is not unfitting that in this spot, pulsing with the life of France, and in this historic moment, teeming with satisfaction we pay repeated tribute to the indomitable dead whose spirit so nobly surrounds us.

"We desire also to testify by our presence, as well as by our words, our admiration for those mothers whose valiant sons sustained through weary years the continuous perpetual struggle which eventually cost their lives.

"At the moment of our landing at Cherbourg, the tears of the bereaved mothers of France mingled with those of America in an understanding sympathy which needed no expression in words."

ASKS RECEIVER FOR F. & L. STREET CAR LINE

Charles S. Cummings of Boston, today, filed a bill in equity in Suffolk Superior Court, asking for the appointment of a receiver for the Fitchburg and Leominster Street Railway, and that the company be ordered to pay interest on five $1,000 bonds he holds.

He also asks that the road be enjoined from paying interest on unsecured notes until such time as the bonds are paid in full.

LEGION VET WALK OUT ON POINCARE

Verdun, France, Sept. 21 (I.N.S.) Declaring they came to Verdun visit battlefields and not to he speeches, hundreds of Americ legionnaires walked out from t luncheon tendered them in the m ket place today, leaving Premi Poincare speaking to an almost empty hall.

"We're not in the army now. Let go!" the legionnaires exclaimed.

When the prolonged luncheon a the length of the official speech promised to cut short the legionnaires' visit to the battlefields, they went forthwith.

Among the notables present at t luncheon, in addition to Premi Poincare, were General Pershin General Gourand and the prefect Muse, Department of Mlle.

The legionnaires, who had arrive at Verdun from Paris shortly aft noon were scheduled to leave for t battlefields at 1 o'clock—right aft luncheon. But the task of servin the 1,000 legionnaires taxed the c pacity of the serving staff, with t result that the luncheon was not fi ished until 2:30 o'clock.

TEST OF FRIENDSHIP.

M. Poincare, undisturbed by th rush for the exits, continued h speech to the end, his words carryin high praise of the departing legionnaires as long as the latter wo within hearing distance.

"I raise my glass to the Amer can veterans, and drink to the i mortal amity of France and t United States," the French Premi said.

"It is a brotherhood in arms, te ed by the most awful, the most mu derous war in which mankind h ever been involved. This brotherhood cannot be short-lived, nor ca our mutual sentiments be doomed destruction in the conflict of inte ests that are bound to arrive or pe sist after so great an internation shock.

"Two peoples who united in d fense of a common cause, w learned to understand each oth better, who found new reasons f their ancient friendship, can n longer be separated by anything.

ASSURED OF WELCOME.

"Whether Americans arrive h air or by ocean, they can always b assured they will receive the mo cordial welcome among us. And t all Americans, those who former crossed this land to fight on ou soil, who exposed themselves t bloodshed in our country, or wh have sons or brothers buried her will always have a privileged plac in the heart of France."

SENATE FIGHT ON MORROW COMING

Washington, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Selection of his close friend and Amherst College classmate, Dwight W. Morrow, to the ambassadorship to Mexico by President Coolidge has brought forth intimations of opposition in the Senate over the envoy's confirmation because of his partnership in the New York banking firm of J. P. Morgan & Co.

His appointment already approved by the Mexican government, Mr. Morrow is expected to sever his connection with the Morgan Company at once and without delay take up the post in Mexico City, which has been vacant since the resignation of James R. Sheffield this Summer. He will act under a recess appointment until the Senate acts on his selection.

The chief opposition to Morrow's selection probably will require in the Senate upon whether he has completely relinquished his Morgan Company connections, because of the dealings between American banks here and the Mexican government on loan problems.

Morrow, as an associate in the Morgan concern of Thomas W. Lamont, who formulated the Lamont-Pani agreement for the settlement of Mexico's overdue loans, is considered by State Department officials to be cognizant of Mexico's financial and other affairs.

Mr. Morrow, it is assumed, will have occupied the ambassadorship for several weeks before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee meets at the convening of the Senate in December. He may accomplish during that time a defining of American policy towards Mexico more clearly. It is considered among some official circles.

G. P. HUNTLEY, NOTED IRISH ACTOR, DEAD

London, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—George Patrick Huntley, Irish actor, died today at a London nursing home.

He first went to America in 1891, playing in "Still Waters Run Deep." His other American appearances included the role of Lord Gresham in "Aren't We All," in which he succeeded Cyril Maude; Alarik in "Son of My Dreams" to Joseph Peabody Prescott in "Be Yourself," all in 1924, and an appearance with Raymond Hitchcock in "Hitchy-Koo" in 1921.

Non-Stop Racers Held Up at New York by Cross Wind

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Sept. 21 (I.N.S.).—With a strong cross wind inimical to takeoff conditions and a possible postponement under discussion, the three entrants in the non-stop New York-to-Spokane air derby expressed anxiety concerning the start of the race scheduled for this afternoon at 3 o'clock, Eastern time.

Although Eddie Stinson's plane was poised on the starting mound, the machine entered by "Duke" Schiller was still in its hangar, as was Steve Lacey's "Airking."

The latter was undergoing engine repairs, and it was feared that work would not be completed by the starting hour.

Prizes totaling $50,000, besides many silver trophies, some valued as high as $2,000, will be the rewards of winners in the events here.

Mayoughou demanded $100,000 damages from Zamos for alienating the affections of a woman who Mayoughou claimed was his wife. Chief United States Deputy Marshal Woodbury S. Mount Vernon, Ill., Sept. 21 (I.N.S.).—Mrs. Elsie Sweetin went on the witness stand today in an attempt to prove she was in fear of being mobbed at the time she made two confessions through which the State hoped to convict her of the murder of her husband that she might marry Lawrence M. Hight, pastor.

In an emotional demonstration before Judge Pearce, who must decide whether the confessions are admissable, Mrs. Sweetin moaned: "They were so cruel to me, and I kept telling them over and over I didn't kill my husband. I loved him."

He confided, after the knot had been tied, that it was a case of "love at first sight." He said he had never seen his bride until he went to her home today ostensibly to hire her as a housekeeper.

"I knew as soon as I laid my eyes on her that she was the girl for me," Martin said. "I suggested that we get married and she agreed. That's all there is to it."

N DEATH CAR WHEN GRIFFIN WAS SLAIN

Lawrence, Sept. 21.—Witnesses ...ng said they saw the death car in ...hich Leo Nolin, Herman Reed and ...9-year-old Mary Cuicka are alleged to have sped away from the ...averhill store in which William ...f. Griffin was slain, testified today ...the trial of the trio.

Nolin and Reed are on trial in Superior Court before Judge Quinn, charged with the murder of the shopkeeper, while the girl, sweetheart of Nolin, is charged with being an accessory after the fact.

Testimony was given also today relative to the finding of an empty cartridge shell in the store, and a bullet imbedded in a fence adjoining the shop.

The bullet was found ten days after the shooting, Harry Boston, a neighbor, testified. He said he saw it in the fence and notified Police Inspector Ryan, who picked it out of the wood.

Later, Boston testified, he went into the Griffin store with Griffin's nephew, Chester A. Walker, and Walker found the shell in one corner of the shop.

Walker, corroborating Boston, testified that at the time the bullet was fired on the murder night, he was in the house at the rear of the store.

Fred W. Webster and his 18-year-old son Edward, residents next door to the store, both testified to seeing the car alleged to have been the murder car.

The younger Webster said he had seen in the store a few minutes before Griffin was shot.

HARBOR ROARS WELCOME TO 2 JAP WARSHIPS

Hailed by the thunderous crashing of Navy Yard guns, and an raucous clamor of harbor shipping, for horns and sirens, the cruisers Iwate and Asama of the training squadron of the Japanese Navy dropped anchor in Boston upper harbor today.

While army and navy planes circled and swooped overhead, and every kind of a noise making device aboardshore was extended to almost capacity, the Japanese war vessels steamed slowly up the harbor in the wake of the police boat Guardian.

The Asama was berthed in the stream, midway between the north and south East Boston ferries, and her sister craft between the south ferry and Rowes Wharf, anchorages which afforded the best possible advantages to spectators.

Commanded by Rear Admiral Osami Nagano, and carrying 60 officers, 182 midshipmen and 1,200 seamen, the two cruisers came to Boston from Havana, for a five-day stay, during which the crew will be entertained at various functions.

The visiting war vessels boomed a salute of 13 guns as they approached the Navy Yard and dropped anchors. This salute was returned.

After mooring, Rear Admiral Nagano and his staff were visited by Rear Admiral Philip Andrews of the Yard. Admiral Andrews was accompanied by Capt. William L. Littlefield, commanding the battleship Utah, and Capt. H. D. Cooke and Commander Leland Jordan of the Yard.

Salutes were again exchanged, and the officers of both nations lined up on the deck of the Cruiser Iwate while the national airs of both nations were rendered.

VISIT TO FULLER.

The American officers went ashore after the ceremonies, and a short time later the Japanese admiral and his staff arrived at the Navy Yard to return the visit. They were taken in automobiles to the Commandant's office, where the Marine and Navy bands were waiting and once more respects were paid. Present were T. Kuki, Japanese interpreter, and George Tupper of the Japan Society.

Following the meeting the party proceeded to the State House, where the visiting admiral and his staff paid their respects to Governor Fuller. At 1 o'clock they were the luncheon guests at the New Parker House of the Governor and the Executive Council.

After the luncheon the visitors were scheduled to visit Mayor Nichols.

Holstead, mechanic at the airport, owns Keno, which is a pet with the fliers.

HOLD SUSPECT IN GIRL THEFT

Attleboro, Sept. 21 (A.P.)—Rhode Island State police, after an all night hunt in the Cumberland and North Attleboro section, arrested Joseph Mongeau, 21, Central Falls as the hold-up man who dragged a 17-yearold girl from a parked automobile last night.

Edward McKee of Lonsdale was driver of the machine. The robber pointed a gun, searched the driver in vain for money and then dragged the girl away.

She was found in the woods later and described her assailant.

Providence, Sept. 21.—The act of an armed thug in taking a 17-year-old girl from the side of a youth in a parked automobile and attacking her in the woods nearby gave police today a suggestion as to the solution of the mysterious murder of Gilbert Nuttall on a lonely road in West Warwick a month ago.

The thug held up Edward McKee of Lonsdale and the girl in McKee's car which was parked on the Hunt's bridge road in Cumberland. Failing to find much money on McKee, he took away the girl.

McKee got the police, but the girl was not found for two hours. Motorcycle Officer James P. Bradley found her wandering aimlessly on the Cumberland woods. Her clothes were torn and she said she had been attacked.

Earlier in the evening Mrs. Mabel Vigeard, thirty-five, of Adamsdale was accosted by a man near her home on a lonely road and when she refused to give him money he dragged her down a bank. Workmen frightened him away.

Miss Gertrude Lee, Nuttall's companion on the night he was shot, declared the man who stole his coat from the car did the shooting. The coat was found, however, behind a stone wall.

Vienna, Sept. 21 (I.N.S.).—A large number of Jugo-Slav troops and Macedonian insurgents was dead or wounded today following an all-night battle in the Warsaw river valley according to a report from Belgrade.

Boy, 7, Bitten by Dog

Edward F. Cunningham, 7, of No. 240 Washington street, Somerville, was bitten on the face by a dog near his home while returning from school today. Patrolman Edward G. Forristall lassoed the dog which was turned over to the State Department of Health.

yesterday a faded copy of its first report, issued fifty years ago.

The Chase Bank then had in all $1,042,000. The same bank told the comptroller of the currency last June that it had one billion and forty-two million dollars. Every dollar the bank had fifty years ago has grown to a thousand dollars. That's how this country goes ahead. Many things that foolish men are selling short now, fifty years hence will be worth a thousand times what they are today. Make a note of it, but DON'T GAMBLE.

Colonel Ralph Isham brings to America the "Boswell papers," unpublished writings, insured for $570,000, and are worth it.

Samuel Johnson, thanks to Boswell, lives in the minds of thousands now as he lived in London in the eighteenth century. And now, as then, people are familiar with his conversation that never read his books.

As time passes we know more about Johnson's personality, less about his writings. That's unusual. His conversation was marvelously direct; his writings rather "high stepping." Burke said of Johnson's descriptions of women: "All his ladies were Johnsons in petticoats."

Johnson is not read as he should be. Young advertisement writers might try their hands at writing better prose than the opening lines of Rasselas—written by Johnson in a few hours to pay for his mother's funeral.

Ye who listen with credulity to the whispers of fancy and pursue with eagerness the phantoms of hope; who expect that age will perform the promises of youth, and that the deficiencies of the present day will be supplied by the morrow—attend the history of Rasselas, prince of Abyssinia——"

Mr Morrow gives up his partnership with J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. to accept a poorly-paid job as Minister to Mexico. This he does to oblige his friend and classmate, President Coolidge.

Many Ministers, Ambassadors and others would gladly give up their diplomatic jobs for a partnership with Morgan & Co.

COLD WAVE HAS DODGED HUB

Divergence southeastward through the night of the widespread western cold wave averted its descent upon New England and permitted a storm area in Quebec to remain to threaten the Atlantic Coast.

The predicted heavy frosts through the corn belt, mention of which caused a scare on Wall Street yesterday, failed to materialize, and by the same token the tocsin calling domestic furnace stokers to their annual cellar jobs remained mute.

The local Weather Bureau predicts the influence of the frigid area will be felt in Greater Boston tonight, but not enough to cause any discomfort.

Forecast for Boston and vicinity: Partly cloudy tonight and Thursday; somewhat cooler tonight; moderate northwest and north winds.

'RECALL YOUR ENVOY!' FRANCE TELLS SOVIET

Paris, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—The storm which has been hovering over the head of Christian Rakovsky Soviet ambassador to France, has burst at last.

La Matin announces that France has officially informed the Moscow government that Rakovsky's recall is an indispensable condition to any negotiations for a non-aggression pact with the Soviets.

Furthermore, the French ambassador, M. Herbette, was instructed to say, the Soviets must give practical proof of their intention to live up, both in spirit and letter to their solemn undertaking, entered into in 1924, to abstain from all interference with France's internal affairs, by ordering their agents and those of the Third of Communist International to cease activities in France.

In addition, France requires that the Soviets take active steps to bring to a conclusion the long-drawn negotiations for settlement of Russia's debts to France.

Only when these conditions have been scrupulously fulfilled, M. Herbette was instructed to say, will France consent to open negotiations for the treaty of non-aggression recently proposed by the Soviet government.

TWO CLEARED IN WOMAN'S DEATH

Mrs. Catherine Barry, mother of seven children, whose dead body was found in her home at No. 73 Tremont street, Cambridge, soon after an unknown man and woman had been seen leaving the house, came to her death through natural causes according to Associate Medical Examiner Donald C. Currier today.

Dr. Currier submitted his report to the Cambridge police after performing an autopsy and his verdict ended an investigation based on the police theory of possible foul play.

Search has been made by the police for the mysterious man and woman whom Mrs. Elizabeth O'Connor of No. 81 Tremont street said had entered the Barry home shortly before the body of Mrs. Barry was discovered by two of her children, William, 14, and Margaret, 6.

Eddy Whitby Dead

Saranac Lake, N. Y., Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Eddy Whitby, formerly of Baltimore, long prominent in business and social life here, died today.

HULL POLICEMAN DIES; WIFE UNAWARE, SPEEDS HOME

Somewhere between Boston and Prince Edward Island Mrs. Annie Dowd of Hull is speeding homeward from her vacation to help her husband spend his, uninformed of his death.

The husband, Patrolman James F. Dowd sixty-one, and one of the last of the "Old Guard" of the Hull Police Department, died in the family home on Nantasco Hill.

Yesterday Dowd started his annual vacation. His wife knew of the date and wrote she would bring her stay among old friends on the island to a close so as to be with him. She apparently left late yesterday, for attempts to reach her today failed.

Last night Patrolman Dowd was seized with a heart attack. His condition became worse and early today he died.

He was appointed to the Hull police force thirty-two years ago. Besides his widow, he is survived by a son, Charles, and a brother, Augustus Dowd.

Police in Eating War on Festive Lobster

The supply of lobsters will probably shrink materially next week when Police Lieutenant Carroll Davis and Patrolman John Cataldo of Revere wield the lobster forks and nut crackers in a championship eating contest.

Big men, both of them, Davis and Cataldo are two of the heaviest eaters in police ranks anywhere—which is "saying a mouthful."

The patrolman holds the Revere championship, but his superior challenged him today with a statement that he could put away 12 pounds of lobster. This made Cataldo's high mark of 9½ pounds of spaghetti, which he consumed in defeating Patrolman Lawrence Dugan a week ago, look like 30 cents, and he accepted the challenge. The contest takes place Wednesday at Hibernian Hall, Revere.

Cataldo recently won a clam-eating contest from Patrolman Harry Mc Sharry.

87 STATIONS JOIN IN RADIO HOOKUP

New York, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Eighty-seven broadcasting stations will join tonight in the largest hook-up in radio history to broadcast the program of the radio industries banquet at the Astor Hotel, according to Larry Nixon, secretary of the banquet committee.

The hook-up includes individual stations and members of five chains. In some cities two or more stations will broadcast the program. Telephone wire charges for relaying the program from Atlantic to Pacific and into Canada for re-broadcasting were estimated today to approximate $350,000, with another $300,00 for payment of entertainers and other charges.

The program is scheduled to start at 6 p. m., Eastern standard time, and will continue until midnight, with most of the stations waiting until 8 o'clock to join the hook-up. The only speech will be made by W. H. G. Bullard, U. S. N., retired, president of the Federal Radio Commission, who will talk for ten minutes, beginning at 8.

The rest of the program will consist of twenty-five radio entertainment features selected as representing the cream of radio programs.

300 CASUALTIES AS CHINESE ARE DISARMED

Shanghai, China, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—The disarming of troops whose loyalty is doubted by the Nationalist military council has resulted in three engagements along the Shanghai-Hangchow and Shanghai-Nanking railway resulting in more than 300 casualties.

The First Army Corps under General Ho Ying-Ching tore up the railway at Hsinchwang and disarmed a trainload of 1,500 men coming from Hankow and belonging to the 31st Army Corps. Further fighting occurred during the disarming of 3,000 additional men and hundreds of wounded were brought into the hospitals in the native city of Shanghai today.

MAIL MAN ACCUSED IN DECOY LETTER CASE

New Bedford, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Charged with the larceny from the mails of two decoy letters placed in a box on his route by postal inspectors, Louis C. Marsh, New Bedford letter carrier, was to be arraigned before United States Commissioner George E. Lilley today.

Marsh was arrested at the postoffice when he returned from his collecting today and did not turn in letters containing $10 in marked bills.

Inspectors who made the arrest declared they found the money on Marsh's person when they searched him.

RADIO DIALOG

by C. WILLIAM RADOS

THE Eveready Hour last night was our reason for working. From the start of "Dancing Tambourine" through to the last one, "Strike Up the Band," we listened to a fast moving, well balanced program.

We have never heard a better opening number on any program. "Dancing Tambourine" was executed with that snap and rhythmic fire that showed eagerness of the orchestra.

No doubt it was because Nat Shilkret and his men were on exhibition in the Crystal Palace at the World's Radio Fair. If broadcasts all react in the same manner the Evereadiers did last night, we are in favor of erecting studios at busy street corners.

* * *

"Slow River" by the Eveready Revellers was the first vocal number. Like its predecessor, it suffered just a bit from eagerness and desire to please. We should have liked it just a trifle smoother.

But those Revellers are a revelation in the range and type of presentation they can make.

Not on our printed program was "The Two Beggars" sung as a duet. The only other selection from the singers we heard was the "Lost Chord." (Silvertown should look into this.) This selection came through the best by far. Just as the gentle rise and fall of swelling organ music inspires the listener, so did the "The Lost Chord."

They were best in their quartet work.

Nat Shilkret was willing to stay, but we had to leave. Instead of the N. B. C. announcer somebody from the Eveready office spoke. There was no home brew.

* * *

We spent the best part of the hour previously with WNAC Players. In spite of occasional slight conflicts between the meaning conveyed and the tones used we found it interesting. O'Pry House series by the WNAC Players is the only radio play Boston has. It should be encouraged for this reason.

* * *

We hope the Players will spend more time on these broadcasts. Some rough corners can be smoothed off. The members should drop all other work.

* * *

Going still further backwards we now report how WBET sounded in the early evening of last night. John Knox Hill, who last Fall won the Boston American prize at the Radio Show, was scheduled to be heard. If another beauty contest is managed we wish John luck.

* * *

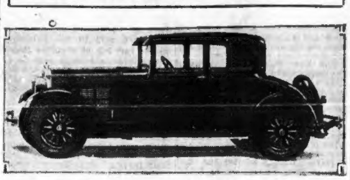
Cellotex is used for the walls and ceiling of the WBET studio. It absorbs sounds. By the time WBET's music gets out to Arlington it apparently has been much absorbed. More power is wanted.

The same applies to WEEI.

MID-WEEK MOTOR NEWS

By J. HERBERT DODGE, Automobile Editor

NEW DODGE SENIOR COUPE



PLENTY OF ROOM FOR FOUR

The new Dodge Brothers senior coupe is a six cylinder car and the seating arrangement has been well planned to provide room for four passengers.

DODGE SEDAN COUPE IS OUT

A Dodge Brothers senior coupe for four passengers is introduced today by the Henshaw Motor Company. This fine six-cylinder car is the third car to be incorporated in the company's new line of sixes and is the embodiment of outward smartness and inward comfort.

The same handling of horizontal lines that gives distinction to the company's senior sedan and cabriolet roadster applies also to this coupe—long, sloping hood, unbroken striping from front to rear, long windows, deep body panels and low top structure with short, hooded visor.

The extra length of the body gives an impression of the roominess for which the designers strived. The driver's seat is unusually wide and the fourth passenger has practically the same leg room as the driver, still leaving generous room for the rear seat passengers behind the extra seat.

This coupe sets the same high performance standards as Dodge Brothers Senior Sedan and Cabriolet Roadster—70 honest miles per hour with ease, snappy acceleration in traffic and reserve power that makes driving a pleasure.

One of the most attractive bodies, in the opinion of Sales Manager C. F. Mussey of Henshaw Motor Co., is done in greens, striped with gold. Another combination that is most effective is two striking blues striped with cream.

"TWO-WAY" BRAKES PLEASE NASH DRIVERS

"Nash owners and thousands of people who have accepted the Nash Motor Company's invitation to drive one of the twenty-one six-cylinder, seven bearing crankshaft models are outspoken in their praise of the Nash two-way mechanical four-wheel braking system," according to C. P. Rockwell, New England distributor.

"Nash engineers explain that the two-way feature of Nash brakes means internal expanding front wheel brakes and external contracting rear. This principle, combined with full equalization, results in absolute safety for the Nash owner, for the front and rear brakes compensate each other. Even when descending a mountainside with brake drums too hot to touch, they work with the same efficiency as under ideal driving conditions. They are likewise unaffected by climatic changes.

CHEVROLET SALESMEN STAGE ANNUAL OUTING

Fifty members of the "72 Car Club" of the Boston zone of the Chevrolet Motor Company opened their annual dinner and outing with a short business meeting in the Hotel Statler.

The "72 Car Club" is composed of honor men in the retail selling organization of the Chevrolet Motor Company, who have the distinction of having delivered more than 72 new Chevrolets from August, 1926, to August, 1927.

Immedately after the meeting, the men boarded busses in front of the Statler Hotel and rode to Rowe's Wharf, where they embarked on the steamship Rose Standish for a day's entertainment afloat. Upon docking, busses carried the men to the Hotel Statler for dinner, after which they were entertained by a cabaret performance until the curtain arose on "Honeymoon Lane" at the Tremont

SALES OF NEW CADILLAC JUMP

Detroit, Sept. 21.—Reports indicating sales of the new Cadillac car far surpassing those of any new Cadillac model ever before introduced drew the following statement from Lawrence P. Fisher, president and general manager of the Cadillac Motor Car Company, today:

"The Cadillac Motor Car Company has just completed a two-year manufacturing program which has included expansion and re-equipment of its plants and the introduction during the past twelve-month period of two new cars.

"Revamping of the plants has been completed to increase production from a maximum of 30,000 to 60,000 cars per year. This anticipated combined production of Cadillacs and La Salles will be greater than that of all other companies in the fine car field over any previous single-year period.

"Production of the LaSalle alone during its first six months has already surpassed that of any company building an exclusively fine car during its first twelve months.

"With the introduction of the La Salle last Spring and the introduction of the new Cadillac now, this is the first time in Cadillac history when two entirely new cars will have been placed on the market within a single year.

"Introduction of four new LaSalle bodies further broadens the company's market. The new LaSalle cars are the five-passenger Imperial limousine, seven passenger Imperial limousine, seven-passenger sedan and the new town sedan."

WHIPPET COVERS 12,008 MILES IN 720-HOUR TEST

Traveling continuously for 720 hours without a motor stop, averaging 31.11 miles to the gallon of fuel, covering a total distance of 12,008 miles, is the newest achievement of a Whippet motor, according to figures released this week by the Willys-Overland Company, giving the details of one of the most strenuous economy, endurance and stamina tests ever attempted by any motor car.

For thirty days and nights the Whippet roadster's engine was kept running without a stop, the [illegible] of the tests coming at the [illegible] of the route at Ithaca, N. Y., where the car was driven around the [illegible] mile dirt race track, breaking the track record for stock [illegible] cars over a 5-mile distance. The Whippet negotiated the five miles in 6 minutes, 34 seconds. This notable performance was done at the conclusion of the 12,008-mile grind.

During the gruelling test the Whippet roadster was driven by [illegible] drivers.

One hundred college men tried this fountain pen and ninety said it was the best fountain pen they ever saw

They liked the size; they liked the feel of the hard rubber holder; they liked the color; they liked being able to get a pen point that exactly suited their handwriting; they liked the big ink capacity; they liked the surety with which the ink flowed the instant the pen touched paper.

Try it. You will find that all those little interruptions to thought caused by inferior pens have been eliminated.

Why not call on your dealer today and try Waterman's ripple stainless rubber No. 01854? You will like it because it will end all pen annoyances.

Halitosis easy to prevent

Nothing retards you in business, courtship and society like a real case of halitosis (unpleasant breath). It is a continual offense—and needless, too.

Since you, yourself, can never tell when you have halitosis, the only way to be sure of not offending is to rinse the mouth with Listerine every day — especially before any close personal contact.

80 streetcar conductors, meeting the public at close range every day of the year, said that about one person out of three offends by halitosis. Who should know better than they?

MOTHER GOOSE HAS A PARTY AT JORDAN'S

"Mother Goose" herself has just come down from the "Land of Nursery Rhymes," for the first time to entertain the children at Jordan's with songs, stories and surprises.

And who do you think she has with her? None other than her own daughter, "Bubbles," who is a lovely large baby doll. She has been here for three days. Today is her last day and she is giving this parties in the assembly hall of Jordan's Annex at 11 in the morning and at 2 and 3:30 this afternoon.

Humpty-Dumpty is there and the cow who jumped over the moon, Little Miss Muffitt, Little Bo Peep and all the other characters so dear to the hearts of children.

The stories "Mother Goose" told were very interesting and the games were educational as well as lots of fun. The grown folks at the party were just as interested as the children and enjoyed it just as much.

In playing a wonderful traffic game all the children walked around the room, shopping at Jordan's. Then "Mother Goose" put all the toys on one side and the kids on the other. The girls were little queens and the boys were automobiles. Then she sang this little song:

"When the little light is green,
Walk across just like a queen"

All the little girls walked across the imaginary street, and "Mother Goose" sang:

"When the little light is red,
Automobiles go instead!"

Then the boys who were automobiles went across noisily as all little boys do, calling, "Honk! Honk!" as loudly as they could.

Bobbed Hair Or Skirt Taboo for Bible Working Girls

Washington, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Bobbed hair, bright colors, rakish hats, earrings, variegated footwear, sleeveless dresses and "skirts that go more than ten or twelve inches above the floor" have been banned for women Bible workers of the Seventh Day Adventist Church.

On the theory that clothing proclaims the character of the wearer, the Ministerial Association of the church has sent its workers throughout the country a lengthy pronouncement on the subject warning them that "the best dressed women are always quietly dressed."

Among articles the association says should be avoided are vanity cases and miniature handbags, bits of bright colored bandkerchiefs or lace dangling from the sleeve, striped or checked hosiery, umbrellas or pearls mounted with "grotesque or foolish doll heads."

MAYOR WALKER DECLINES HIGH FRENCH HONOR

Paris, Sept. 21. (I.N.S.)—Mayor James J. Walker today declined the highest honor that France could bestow and requested that no elaborate arrangements be made for his reception home in New York.

The New York Mayor declines the decoration of Commander of the French Legion of Honor, which was to have been bestowed on him by President Doumergue. Soon after he told Crozier A. Whalen, chairman of the Mayor welcoming committee of New York, that he wanted no fuss to meet the S. S. Ile de France when it arrives in New York harbor next Tuesday.

Mayor Walker rejected the Legion of Honor decoration to avoid the impression that he had "bargained" for the honor. They recalled that he had supported the French government in asking the Federal government of the United States to rescind taxes due on a parcel of land in Brooklyn used by the French as a supply depot during the war.

Mayor Walker also hesitated to accept because he feared that his admission into the Legion of Honor might detract from the decoration to be given Howard P. Savage, national commander of the American Legion.

The Mayor's party leaves on the Ile de France today.

BETTY ALDEN'S SOCIETY COMMENT

Steamship Paris Brings in Bostonians of Traveled Leisure Set

TALL SHIPS GO TO AND FRO over the ocean with their interesting boat loads. Members of the traveled set take ship to sail away on interesting journeys. Or they take ship to sail homeward on the last lap of pleasure jaunts. Such a company is in port to debark today from the steamship Paris at her New York dock after a Summertime in the Old World.

THE HUGH SCOTTS OF Wellesley; Mr. and Mrs. Scott, Miss Helen Scott and Mr. Robert Scott will come down the gangplank smiling and happy from their travels. Mrs. Henry Parsons King, of Boston and the North Shore, is a passenger for home shores via the Paris. Mrs. King has with her Mrs. George W. W. Brewster of Beacon street. The King estate on the shore at Pride's Crossing is the magnificent "Sunset Rock," a show place in a region extremely rich in such.

THE JEAN JAQUES HAFFNER family of Cambridge is following its usual procedure. A family party embarks to the Old World in the early Summer, and in the early Autumn comes back to the New World. Mr. and Mrs. Haffner, with their two daughters, Miss Francoise and Miss Monique, are making the current westward crossing on the French liner. Olsen Field of Weston and Adam Rhodes also are aboard.

MISS NANCY VOSE

This talented and attractive member of the younger set has just returned from a trip abroad with her parents.

CERTAIN SOCIETY BIRDS OF PASSAGE HAVE TAKEN WING for the Old World. Harold S. Vanderbilt, sportsman of the first water, is away to foreign playgrounds for an Autumn's visit. He sailed away on the France and is just about stepping ashore on French soil at this moment. Mrs. George Grenville Merrill, of Boston, Stockbridge and Newport, is, or was, a passenger overseas on the same liner.

MRS. MERRILL IS THE MOTHER OF THE MISS NATALIE MERRILL, so widely known in Boston's younger set and whose debut was accomplished by her aunt, none other than Mrs. John Nicholas Brown of the many riches. Miss Natalie is not on the present European jaunt, but a younger daughter, Miss Margery Pepperell Merrill, is with the mother. The party also includes Miss Helena Phelps.

STILL ANOTHER MATRON OF PROMINENCE ACCOMPANIED abroad by a daughter is Mrs. Ralph Adams Cram of "Whitehall" in Sudbury, spouse of the famous architect. The daughter in question is a younger one, Miss Elizabeth Cram, and very shortly now the two will be ashore in France. Of the homecoming troupe, exuberant over a Summer crammed full of incident and variety, there is no end.

MRS. GEORGE W. CUSHING, WITH HER TWO VERY ATTRACTIVE daughters, Miss Grace Cushing and Miss Ellen Cushing, are home again after a delightful Summer. Frank Brewer Bemis is in town once again after another of the frequent trips with which he varies his days. Mr. and Mrs. Jean Bedell have returned. So have Mrs. John White Hallowell of Milton and two sons.

MRS. HALLOWELL'S PARTY AND THE RICHARD C. STOREY group were one, of a family atmosphere. Mrs. Storey had William C. Storey and John C. Storey with her. Mrs. Manning Emery, Jr., of Framingham Centre, is home with one daughter, Miss Mary Emery, and a son, Manning Emery, 3d., but leaves another daughter, Miss Elizabeth, at school in Florence. Motoring around Devonshire was a part of the Emery Summer.

A YEAR OF SCHOOL IN FLORENCE IS THE PROGRAM FOR another sub-debutante, Miss Cora Lyman, daughter of the Henry Lymans of Commonwealth avenue. Dr. Lyman, with Charles P. Lyman and Henry, Jr., have just arrived home, but Mrs. Lyman stays on in Florence with Miss Cora for a short while. I believe the names of both Miss Lyman and Miss Emery are to be inscribed on the list of 1928-9 debutantes, and as each has important relations by the score, their Winters will be gay ones.

THE LOUIS E. VOSES OF CHARLES RIVER SQUARE HAVE JUST come down the gangplank of the Suffren after delightful travels through many countries and through many months. The Voses, Mr. and Mrs. Vose, Miss Nancy and Miss Phyllis, were in the vanguard of the rush that got under way early in the Summer. An account of their wanderings would furnish rich material for a travel folder.

BADEN-POWELL NAMED FOR NOBEL PEACE PRIZE

Stockholm, Sept. 22 (A.P.).—Sir Robert Baden-Powell, founder of the Boy Scout movement, has been formally nominated as a candidate for the next Nobel peace prize.

The value of each of the five annual Nobel prizes will this year be $32,473, according to the most recent calculation based on the total earnings of the estate of the late Alfred Nobel, who founded the prizes twenty-five years ago. While the peace prize is paid in Stockholm, the winner is selected, according to Nobel's will by a Norwegian committee, appointed by the Storthing.

PHILLY BOWS TO VARE MACHINE

Philadelphia, Sept. 21. (AP).—The Republican organization under the leadership of Sen.-Elect William S. Vare apparently was still in control in Philadelphia today despite efforts of independent voters within the party for a new order of things.

Returns from yesterday's primary election from nearly one-half of the 1317 divisions gave the organization slate a comfortable lead, but it was far below pre-election estimates of the leaders. In the mayoralty contest, in which the fight centered, figures from 715 divisions, tabulated early today, showed that Harry A. Mackey, organization candidate, was leading J. Hampton Moore, independent, by 93,174. The vote in these divisions was: Mackey 116,901 and Moore 93,757.

POLICE FIND NO CLUE TO TEACHER

Suicide Theory Held by Parent, Who Pleads That the Charles River Be Dragged

Waltham police and Willis Huntley of Claremont, N. H., father of Leigh H. Huntley, missing school teacher, searched the swamps about Waltham today for the young man's body.

Convinced that his son committed suicide, he again requested the police drag the Charles River in the belief the body would be found there. Police declared such a task futile as the river runs for three miles through Waltham, and they do not know where to begin.

MAN SAW HIM.

Huntley's father declared he is positive his son committed suicide because of worry over his work as a teacher of manual training in Waltham, and the fear that the task was too big for him.

Police were told by Mrs. Mary Gallagher, a neighbor of the family with whom Huntley lived, that she saw him at 5 p. m. last Wednesday walking down Jerome street in the direction of West Newton. That is the last known of his activities.

DOESN'T BLAME LOVE.

Acting on this information police and the young man's father went over the route and worked into West Newton, but found no clews. A swamp in North Waltham was then investigated.

The father repeated his belief that neither his son's love affair with Miss Gladys Humphreys, Claremont school teacher, nor his dabbling in stocks had anything to do with his disappearance.

WRITES SHE WON'T LIVE WITH HIM

Rev. Kierstead in Court Reads "Letters of Hate," Saying She Wants Divorce

Brockton, Sept. 21.—Differences between the Rev. George E. Kierstead of East Pembroke, recent Harvard law student, present clergyman and traveling salesman, and his wife were regarded by her as a sort of "holy war," it was brought out in Probate Court today.

A statement to this effect was contained in a letter read by the Rev. Mr. Kierstead, which was one of numerous snappy extracts from epistles he claimed were written him by his wife.

He appeared to ask the court to establish the fact that he is living apart from his wife for justifiable cause. The case was taken under advisement.

The clergyman testified the trouble began shortly after their marriage in 1912, when his wife developed the custom of sitting in church and making audible defamatory remarks about her husband while he was preaching.

He said she refused to live with him, and threatened his life several times. He quoted from one of her letters the following characterization of himself:

"You are too unbalanced to be a genius and not balanced enough to be a man."

The petitioner said he accepted a pastorate in Saskatchewan, B. C., but his wife refused to accompany him, so he went alone. In 1918 he enlisted in the Canadian service and went overseas, he stated. On his return he met his wife, having sent her money during the period of his service, but she refused to live with him.

He quoted from another letter as follows:

"I do not want to live with you, don't worry. I do want $6,816.16 and a divorce. I want you to shut up about morals, fairness and life serving until you have paid your debts."

On another occasion the wife wrote:

"I hate you all right, but worse, I despise you."

LT. JAMES HEWINS

LIEUT. HEWINS, WABAN AIRMAN, DIES IN TEXAS

Illness resulting from a former operation ended in the death at San Antonio, Tex., of Lieutenant James Hewins, Jr., crack pilot and instructor in the United States air service and son of James Hewins of No. 1538 Beacon street, Waban.

Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been completed, but the body will be brought to Boston and burial will be in Medfield.

Lieutenant Hewins was born in Roxbury, August 28, 1902, and received his early education in the public schools and Roxbury Latin School. Later he graduated from Newton High School and entered the military academy at West Point in 1920, graduating four years later.

From West Point he entered the U. S. air service and remained in it until his death. He had been stationed for some time at Brooks Field, San Antonio, as instructor.

Lieut. Hewins had many hairbreadth escapes from death and in December 1925 he suffered a broken leg and other injuries when his plane crashed into the woods on a farm near Zanesville, O.

Besides his father, he is survived by a brother, Alfred Hewins, also of Waban.

GALLIVAN FOR DIRECT PRIMARY

Douglass and Connery Also Oppose Any Change in the Present Election Laws

Repudiating the stand taken by Charles H. McGlue, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, for a pre-primary convention, three Democratic Congressmen today vigorously opposed any tinkering with the popular direct primary law.

The three were James A. Gallivan of South Boston, John J. Douglass of East Boston and William P. Connery of Lynn. They spoke before the special legislative committee on election laws at the State House.

Congressman Gallivan said he knew very little about the Democratic State committee and still less about where its headquarters are located, but that the answer to the McGlue stand was, "He probably is ambitious to go to Congress."

"I worked hard for the direct primary and I still believe in it," he declared. "Personally, I advise the committee to go slow. I see no demand for a change."

Gallivan said he believed the agitation for an innovation in the present law is based on the inability of the Republican leaders to eliminate State Auditor Alonzo B. Cook from office.

"If you are going to change the fundamental law simply because of one individual it is, to say the least, a very strange proceeding," he commented.

Both Gallivan and Connery agreed that under a pre-primary convention system, as advocated by both chairmen of the two leading parties, women would have little chance for office.

Incidentally, Gallivan took the opportunity to announce his candidacy for re-election to his present office.

Congressman Connery charged that the move for a change is nothing but an opening wedge to break down the entire system and go back to the old convention system.

Governor Fuller, he pointed out, would never have been elected under the old convention system, nor would Congressman Andrews. Both, he declared, had "licked" the candidates with the machine tags.

A Real Drama of Intrigue in Boston Theatrical Life After Curtain

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

Becky McCloskey, young, good-looking, trying to make her way alone in Boston, finds herself without a position. Dan Scarlett, who lives by his wits, sees her huddled in a doorway and persuades her to go to dinner with him. Scarlett realizes that she has a beautiful voice and makes a bargain to finance her until she gets started if she will let him share her profits. Becky joins a chorus. Scarlett induces her to go to a party given by Boris Abelard on the chance that she may meet the rich John Estabrook, her ideal. At the party Becky is thrust into a fountain with her clothes on and faints. Abelard sends his guests away and has Becky taken care of. Months afterwards Becky meets Estabrook in the studio. She tells him she wishes he had never come. Estabrook finds himself interested in her and kisses her. She stands dazed before him and tells him she expected him to be different. Becky tells Estabrook her ideals of real love.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 3

"DO you want a new dress, Becky?" Estabrook asked curiously when the girl had concluded her passionate recital.

"Say, Ambrose, does a starving cat want milk?"

"I'll gladly give you one, to atone for my rudeness—and my blindness."

"Of course I want a dress, what girl doesn't? And equally, of course I won't take one—especially from you."

"Because of the things I said?" Estabrook took her hand gently, and turned her toward him. "I don't want anything for it, Becky. I'd just like . . . to please you."

"You wouldn't get anything for it if you did want to," Becky returned fiercely, pulling her hand away. "And you wouldn't be the first fat guy who'd tried to buy me an outfit and had the door slammed in his face for his pains." Quite suddenly she came close, and stared up into his face. "Listen," she said almost in a whisper, "I don't want you to get me wrong, silly ' guess, but don't. I've got my little game just like the rest of 'em, and my system's to give just as little as humanly possible. That's what men do in their line, and that's what

WEE FIGHT FANS' HOPES BLASTED BY HUNGER

Well, there'll be two vacant chairs at the Dempsey-Tunney quarrel in tomorrow's late p. m., and it's a bit of a shame, too, because if Johnny Hoffi and Charlie Briana, 14 and 15, of East Boston, had known that the best way to get to Chicago was to head for Chicago—why, they wouldn't have bumped into Patrolman Sullivan in New York.

They were sitting on a bench in Battery Park at the lower tip of Gotham today when Sullivan of the Old Slip station heard one tell the other he would pawn his glasses to get something to eat.

New York police have a curious and suspicious nature, which resulted in Patrolman Sullivan drawing forth from the hungry youths that their one ambition has been to see the fight.

Johnny departed No. 191 Maverick street and Charlie No. 32 Orleans street, to stowaway on board the Boston to New York steamer.

Landing unobserved in New York, they suddenly realized that funds were needed to eat. And so, like many a disillusioned traveler before them, they sat o na time-worn bench to think it over.

Sullivan, taking them in tow, said it was too bad about the fight, but probably they'd run into a couple of real fights when they got home.

MAN TRAPPED UNDER 20 TONS OF STONE IS UNHURT

Leicester, Sept. 21 (A.P.)—Trapped under nearly 20 tons of granite blocks of various sizes, Reuben Olson, 23, of Worcester, escaped serious injury today when a wall collapsed at the rear of a mill here where Olson and six other workmen were excavating.

A Worcester police surgeon examined Olson but found no fractures. No other workman was injured.

WORKMEN WHO ARE ABLEST REWARDED

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—An interview with a gatekeeper, who has been made a director of his company, Procter and Gamble, and announcement of awards for superior craftsmanship to artisans who have worked on the new Hearst publications building in New York appeared in the morning newspapers. They afford clews to why the United States is so very much more productive per worker than Britain or France or Germany.

B. C. Forbes

Let a workman come from Ireland or Italy or England and once he finds his feet here he increases his production, apparently without strain. What is the explanation? The explanation is mental more than anything else—more than climate or wages or living conditions. You and I know how much better and how much more work we can do when our heart and soul are in it than when we are uninterested, indifferent or grouchy.

• • •

Just consider the names and nationalities of the twelve men receiving certificates of excellent workmanship and gold medals from the committee on recognition of craftsmanship of the New York Building Congress: George R. Henry, carpenter; Joseph Murphy, bricklayer; Thomas Mahoney, metal lather; John Lorretti, concrete worker; Ugo Buchignani, cement finisher; James Snyder, steamfitter; P. Flannery, steamfitter's helper; Frank Hilowsky, plumber; Henry Meyer, plumber's helper; E. Somers, electrician; Charles Leveyin, electrician's helper; Guy Vaughn, plasterer.

Why does every large organization have a plan for making similar awards? Why should not industrial and other workers in big plants have their records closely followed by a capable committee and gold medals—supplemented by money—awarded once a year?

• • •

Is there not room for poor work, for fair work, for supero work in every line of business? Progressive concerns now make much ado—very properly—over the salesmen who lead the field. Is it not quite as important to give suitable encouragement to other classes of employes, particularly those engaged in production? It can hardly be questioned that there is great opportunity for bringing about financial benefits to a company in its production departments as there is in the sales department.

A man of foreman rank, earning $250 a month, told me the other day that he switched some time ago from one company to another and added: "This company is as different to work for as white is from black. There was no spirit of loyalty among the workers in the last organization. Every fellow had the feeling that he might be dismissed without a moment's notice—that was the general practice. In the company I now work for the men not only feel secure in their jobs, but nearly all of them take pride in doing their best because they feel they always get a square deal."

• • •

I happen to know both companies—they are very big. Within five years I'm quite sure the latter company will eclipse the one whose men don't feel cordial towards it.

Rewards and directorships for exemplary workers are two means of gaining the desired end.

Statements of Foremost Figures in Title Fight

Flynn

Last year it wasn't the real Dempsey who lost his title, but an ill-advised, harrassed man. Now the real Jack Dempsey is ready to fight. He showed me that he has come back by beating Sharkey. If he could do that, he can beat Tunney. Jack will win by a knockout. Tunney never was a real champion.

Dempsey

I know I'm in the very best condition. I feel it. When I fought Tunney last year, I hadn't had a fight in three years. It took that fight and the one with Jack Sharkey in July to bring me back to where I was when I beat Gibbons four years ago. I'll regain the title. I'm going to win cleanly and decisively. I'm going to show them that I've come back, not just part way, but all the way.

Tunney

I have been training for this fight since last March and have taken good care of myself. I feel confident of beating Dempsey and may even knock him out. Certainly if the chance presents itself I will knock him out. But, at any rate, I feel certain of winning the decision. I am stronger than I was a year ago and I am faster. I am hitting harder, too, and in addition I have more confidence than I had last year.

Gibson

I don't think Dempsey will last five or six rounds with Gene. That's my honest opinion. Tunney is better in every way than he was a year ago, and I don't think Dempsey can be any better than he was for the Sharkey fight. And that Dempsey isn't good enough to beat the Tunney of today.

TUNNEY FEARS BODY ATTACK, SAYS FLYNN

By LEO P. FLYNN

Manager of Jack Dempsey

Chicago, Sept 21—I began to see after a three and a half hour conference with the Boxing Commission and Billy Gibson that the Tunney crowd is making every effort to scare Jack away from Gene's tummy.

Every suggestion they made, every point they brought up, everything they said, all pointed that way. This was a foul, that was illegal and so was some other [illegible] infraction of the rules.

They wanted to know what the referee would do if Dempsey's punch landed an eighth of an [illegible] either side of the belt line. I don't like the tone of their remarks.

Are they trying to [illegible] up the public to expect that Tunney will get fouled?—or do they think that they can make Dempsey afraid to use a body punch, as he was at Philadelphia?

They are wasting their breath. Jack Dempsey will pour shots at Tunney's mid-section on Thursday night, which was one of the things that he should have done at Philadelphia last year. Tunney knows it and he dreads it. So do all of his crowd.

I want to make it very clear that the coming contest is not an ash flicking encounter. It's a grudge fight for a world's championship.

So far as Dempsey is concerned, Dempsey will hit to hurt. And he will hit Tunney where it hurts Gene the most, the stomach.

Dempsey will win this fight, and he will win by a knockout.

'Tunney Should Win,' Declares Jack Conway

of 3 to 1. They figure that it is unlikely that Dempsey will win if the contest goes the distance.

With the wise men saying Dempsey cannot lose in Chicago, I am picking Gene Tunney to successfully defend his championship. I do not believe the Illinois Boxing Commission will allow Tunney to be [illegible] of his title by any improper [illegible].

Tunney is in even better condition than he was when he defeated Dempsey at Philadelphia. He is punching harder and boxing faster. He also has more confidence in his ability to win.

I have also seen Dempsey in training. I believe he is 40 per cent. superior to his Philadelphia form but I don't think [illegible] improvement will be sufficient to enable him to conquer the youthful Tunney.

Dempsey's big chance is by scoring a knockout. He will find it a [illegible] task to tip Tunney over. The latter has never been knocked off his feet during his long fighting career let alone knocked.

TRYING TO RILE TUNNEY.

Dempsey's propaganda campaign has aimed to [illegible] up Tunney so that he will open up and swap blows. [illegible] Jack [illegible] chance of [illegible] Tunney if the latter resorts to the same careful boxing he used so successfully in Philadelphia. But if Gene wades in and tries for a [illegible] Dempsey is dead certain he will knock the former marine cold.

Dempsey can still sock. Make no mistake about that. Great fighters are like ball players in this respect. The last asset they lose is the ability to hit.

Billy Gibson, Tunney's manager, figures Gene is a sure thing to win [illegible] the champion is [illegible].

"Tunney is fit to fight," Gibson told me today. "He hasn't permitted [illegible] [illegible] regular [illegible], and it should be good enough to beat Dempsey.

"We got a good break in the fact Dempsey fought Sharkey first. In that bout, Dempsey [illegible] his [illegible] as a foul fighter. He hit Sharkey low repeatedly. Dempsey's foul tactics in the Sharkey match got such wide publicity that I don't think the former champion will attempt to employ the same kind of tactics tomorrow night.

"I have asked the Illinois Boxing Commission to rule that if either boxer commits a foul that the guilty party shall forfeit his purse."

Leo Flynn, Dempsey's manager, told me there will not be the least question of Dempsey's punches.

"Dempsey can restrict his punches to spots above Tunney's neck and still stop him," said Flynn.

It is believed that the question of referee rests between Walter Eckersall, Chicago sports writer, and Davey Miller, one of the regular licensed officials.

The commission has already stated that George Lytton, Chicago department store magnate, will be one of the three officials. It is believed that Lytton will act in the capacity of a judge. The betting on the bout itself is at 11 to 10 with Tunney a favorite.

[illegible]

Round by Round Announcement of Big Fight

The BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN will afford Bostonians the opportunity of listening to the Dempsey-Tunney fight tomorrow night at 11 o'clock. An announcer in Winthrop square will relay a round by round description of the battle from a direct ringside wire.

The main bout is scheduled to start at 11 p. m., but may begin somewhat before that hour, so be on hand early in front of the AMERICAN office.

town are already here for the battle. The big rush of fans has come from the Middle West and New York.

There are many big race track bettors from New York here. They are mostly Tunney supporters.

The West, on the other hand, is [illegible] for Dempsey. It believes [illegible] his aggressiveness and [illegible] punching power will enable [illegible] Tunney.

In Chicago a great deal of [illegible] is given to a boxer for aggressiveness, even though he fails to [illegible] effectively. This leads many persons to believe that it was not necessary for Dempsey to knock Tunney out to win back his title.

BOXING GAME ON TRIAL.

They figure that if Tunney resorts to safety first tactics and does not risk an exchange of blows that the crowd will be with Dempsey and that it will root the decision in [illegible].

I do not believe the gate will reach [illegible] [illegible] estimate. There are plenty of seats to be had at their face value. The $? [illegible] has already [illegible] while Rickard's hope of a $[illegible] gate may also prove merely an idle dream.

The boxing game will be on trial tomorrow night. A great deal of suspicion has been attracted to some of the findings in recent heavyweight bouts. Persons who have the interest of the game at heart are hoping that there will be something decisive in this battle of awful distances.

Lloyd Waner Equals Singles Record

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 21 (AP)—Lloyd Waner, sensational young Pirate outfielder, equaled the modern major league record for singles in one season, and set another in the number of safeties by a first year man, in the past week, unofficial records show.

He gathered his 179th single from the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday, tieing the modern record set by Johnny Tobin of the St. Louis Browns, in 1921. The all time record, however, is 199, set by Willie Keeler in 1897.

Waner, serving his first year in the major leagues, several days ago reached the 200 mark in total hits, a feat never before achieved by a first-year man, so far as available records show.

Mrs. Fraser who, as Alexa Stirling, learned her golf from Stewart Maiden at the famous East Lake course in Atlanta, Ga., played remarkably steady golf to defeat the girl who in 1925 overwhelmed her by a score of 9 and 8 in the final round of the championship of that year.

DEMPSEY EVEN CHOICE TO DEFEAT CHAMPION

By NICK FLATLEY.

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—Jack Dempsey will be an even money choice to win back his heavyweight championship from Gene Tunney when the two bronzed giants step into the ring tomorrow night. The vanguard of the greatest crowd in fight history has flooded this village with Dempsey money, and odds have dropped from 7 to 5 on the champ to 11 to 10.

The very air out this way, which incidentally is decidedly cold, is full of the Dempsey spirit now. The greatest money magnet sport has known can get himself a historic reception if he can accomplish what no other heavy ever did, regain the throne once lost.

Nick Flatley

Champion Gene is as confident as a man could be that he will still be the cock of the walk after the so-called three million dollar battle is over.

Ex-Champion Jack told your correspondent that he knew he would win, and expected to do it by a knockout. He admits now that he knew he had Tunney beaten in the fourth round at the Sesqui-Centennial, but didn't have the strength to put over the punch.

He has that strength this time. His legs have come back and his old fighting spirit. He realizes that Mister Tunney is an unusually powerful youth, who has never been knocked off his feet, but the tiger has regained his belief in his own indomitability.

Dempsey's confidence bubbles all over him. Tunney's is quiet and reserved, but just as strong. Gene is a bit of a fatalist, believing any man big enough and good enough to win the title can keep it by retaining perfect physical condition and Gene has been training steadily ever since that soggy night at Philadelphia.

The hot spell here bothered Tunney much more than it did Dempsey. Gene had been training up in the New York hills, where the days were cool and snappy, the nights tinged with frost. He lost weight and fretted out here in the torrid nights. The return of real early fall weather pepped him up marvelously and made him look like a million dollars in his last workouts.

GUARD AGAINST TRICKSTERS

Gene will come down to Chicago this evening, not by plane, and spend the morrow at a friend's home in the suburbs. Dempsey will linger at Lincoln Fields until tomorrow afternoon and get in just in time to hop to the Arena. Both gladiators will do a little road work today, and nothing else. The pair are as ready as two human machines can be for the greatest of all physical tests.

Reports and stories of fight fixing are dying down as the time for the collision nears. Speculation continues regarding the referee but his identity will not be divulged until just before the gong rings for the large mugs.

It has been announced, however, that the judges will be two of Chicago's big sportsmen, though their names have not been mentioned.

It is to presume that Tex Rickard knows them, for he stated that he would be willing to bet $10,000 that nobobdy in Chicago would have the nerve to propose anything crooked to the individuals who would be elected to help the referee out with his difficult task.

There has been so much fake stuff that this fight is being guarded against the tricksters as no other bout ever has. Such precautions have become necessary with millions involved, and a huge business at stake.

Any sign of fake or frame in this scrap would ruin the million dollar purses for five or six years at least, and perhaps forever.

The promoters and the managers and the fighters know it, and they will hardly take any chances with their prospective bankrolls.

THEIR LAST FIGHT.

This is very likely to be the last bout of the defeated boxer. Dempsey has announced positively that he will retire if he's beaten. Tunney hasn't said as much, but if he loses the crown, he is likely to pass right out of the picture.

Gene doesn't like the fight racket and admits it. He's in it for the money, and if he licks Dempsey he will be around for next year's million. But this purse will set him for life, and permit him to retire to his pastoral and intellectual pursuits, with no worry about the wolf at the garage door.

Dempsey intends to fight once more if he's champion. He says he could use a million nicely, and that he will quit after one more shot. All of which, incidentally makes it look as if Mr. J. Sharkey of Boston would have his stab again sometime late next Summer, against either Jack or Gene.

The famous meeting of the managers with the Illinois Commission resulted in exactly nothing. Mr. Will Gibson, Jimmy Bronson and Arthur Whiteside, attorney, representing Tunney, asked for some two dozen amendments to the rules. The boys wanted Dempsey to agree to forfeit his cut of the gate, if he committed a foul.

Naturally, that was laughed out. Leo Percentage Flynn, the sole emissary from the Dempsey camp, just said no to everything proposed, and stuck to it. Dempsey had ordered Leo to abide by the rules of the commission here, and to pay no attention to requests for changes.

Jack is all steamed up about the insinuation implied in the request for new foul rulings, and has practically said that all he wants is a chance to knock Tunney out into Lake Michigan.

ARGUE ABOUT BANDAGES.

The matter of bandaging will be settled today. Tunney wants it done in the ring, while Dempsey insists that it be done in the dressing rooms. Jack announced his willingness to sit down with Tunney and have the job performed while both looked on. Jack claims that the time wasted in the ring on the job is unfair to the fans, and is also bad for a fighter, with the chance of cold lake breezes blowing.

It's a cinch that the tape and gauze will be applied with plenty of witnesses, so there can be no chance of any trick stuff. The squabble about the bandaging has irked Dempsey, also, and tended to make him peeved at Gen

The Tiger was paged a couple of times, from the official meeting and merely emphasized the nos that his emissary Leo had handed out.

Leo was quite steamed up after the four-hour meeting was over.

JACK DEMPSEY Tells of Comeback

(Copyright, 1927, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—When I was champion I stepped into a ring not with the idea of defending my title, but with only the thought of whipping the man sent in against me. I hope Tunney does the same thing.

I gave him his crack at me—gave him plenty of them. I did not try any runaway battle with him in Philadelphia. He knows and the world knows that even if I put up a terrible fight I kept stepping into him and tried to make a fight out of it.

I wanted to mix it; tried to give the crowd some action. What about Tunney? What will he do this time?

As champion will he fight to show that he is champion; will he tear into me and give the crowd what it wants? Or will he back pedal and jockey and sidestep and climb a bicycle?

Will he really fight—or will it be a "safety first" game with him? He said he came here to indulge in a "boxing contest."

It seems that Tunney and I are all mixed up as to what this affair is going to be because I thought we were being paid in the total neighborhood of $1,500,000 to fight.

I don't think that the gate would have hit a million if the folks around the country thought that this was to be a "boxing contest."

If I am any judge of what fight fans in this country want I'd say that what they want is good old-fashioned sluggery; that they want to see men step into each other and batter away and keep on battering until one or the other is flattened and in a ring coma.

He certainly will find me ready to let him try it. And while he's doing that I hope he will not consider it unrefined if I happen to smack him one or two just for old time's sake.

JOE DUNDEE ARRIVES FOR ARGONNE BOUT

Joe Dundee, world's welterweight champion, who seems to be destined to rule the 147 pound class for many moons to come, already has packed his wardrobe in the [illegible] Johnny Indrisano of East Boston in the feature bout of the Argonne A. A. open air fistic festival at Braves Field tomorrow night.

With the fistic ozone simply wreaking in talk of the Dempsey-Tunney championship bout in Chicago tomorrow night and with the Argonne Club having completed all details for the broadcasting of this fight round by round at Braves Field tomorrow night, this feature in itself is expected to result in a record throng around the ringside.

The broadcasting feature is resulting in a surpassing demand for seats by women and it is expected that there will be no less than 10,000 women on hand.

The complete show looms up as the greatest of the season with four four rounders and a six rounder supporting the two ten round events.

GENE TUNNEY World's Heavyweight Champion

(Copyright, 1927, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

LAKE VILLA, Ill., Sept. 21.—I'm ready.

I don't think any champion has ever stepped into the ring to defend his title with more peace of mind than I enjoy right now.

Barring the breaks, which are part and parcel of every fight, I don't see how Jack Dempsey can possibly win from me tomorrow night.

In the first place I have what we may call, for want of a better term, the "psychological edge." Dempsey has been beaten by me once and he will enter the ring weighed down by the realization that he has a long uphill battle before him to regain his title—a battle that is going to put Jack Dempsey's fighting heart to its severest test.

A fighting heart, I wonder just what that means? And I cannot help but question just how much good it is going to do Jack Dempsey.

This, distinctly, is to be an exemplification of the age-old conflict between mind and matter—brain versus brawn—of a kind.

IN my mind's eye I have built up a perfect picture of just about how [illegible] Those in Soldier Field, who expect me to tear into Dempsey from the first are going to be saddened. I'll let Dempsey do the tearing and I'll save my strength for the time when I will need it most.

No human, tearing in as Dempsey does, can last ten rounds. He will weaken, while I, better trained and younger should warm up and grow stronger as the fight progresses.

That, in a nutshell, is about the answer. I honestly believe that those in Soldier Field Stadium are going to see a great fight. It may be Jack Dempsey's last. He was a great champion while he held the title, but he can never come back. I have promised my friends that.

Fully satisfied by Al Mello's recent showing against Billy Drake, Bobby Brown and others that the Lowell boy has returned to the form that won him fight after fight in the big league, Tom Goodwin of the Suffolk A. A. has matched him for a 10-rounder with Meyer Cohen of Holyoke.

The bout will feature a show to be staged in the Boston Arena on Monday night, October 3, and the stake will be the New England welter title now held by Cohen. The weight will be 147 pounds and both will post forfeits for weight and appearance.

Ace Hudkins, the Nebraska Wildcat, will meet the winner in the Boston Arena ring at the subsequent show of the Suffolk A. A.

Suffolk A. A. prices will be $1 10, $1 65, $2 20 and $3 30.

The Crescent A. C. of Lynn will hold an all-action show at General Electric Field, Lynn, Saturday afternoon.

Penny stated that the new policy of the club will be to run 40 rounds of boxing every Saturday afternoon at popular prices. The new scale calls for ringside seats to sell for $1.10 while there will be 4000 seats at 50 cents available.

Heading the program Saturday afternoon will be Jack Donohue, the former Boston College football captain, who will meet Johnny Walker of Salem in an eight round bout. Another eight will bring together Billy Vincent of East Boston and Tommy Daley of Lynn.

Cooking for Two Is Often a Problem

By MARTHA LEE

THE most perplexing task of the inexperienced housekeeper is the planning and preparation of meals, especially when there are only two to cook for.

Breakfast, as a rule, causes little anxiety as the portions of fruit, eggs, sausage, bacon, ham and prepared cereal are easily measured, except that the bride often finds it difficult to know just how much flour, milk and eggs she needs for six pancakes, say, or cereal for two dishes of oatmeal. It is a problem, as most of these recipes are prepared for the serving of larger portions.

When cooking cereal, there are several general rules to be kept in mind—one is the proportion of water to cereal—and the other is the quantity of cereal required for two portions. Usually, one-half cup of cooked cereal is allowed for each serving when eggs, bacon, sausage or ham are to be included in the breakfast menu, and a three-quarter cup portion allowed for each serving when cereal, fruit and toast complete the meal.

For serving two with this quantity allow one-half cup rolled oats, three-quarter cup rolled wheat, one-third cup cornmeal, one-third cup hominy, or one-third cup granulated wheat, to one and one-half cups boiling water and one-half teaspoon salt. All cereal should be well cooked, using a double boiler and cooking at least one hour.

For plain griddle cakes to be served with sausage, use the following recipe: One cup sifted flour, one-quarter teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon baking powder, one-half teaspoon baking soda, one cup thick sour milk, one egg, two tablespoons melted butter.

Mix and sift the dry ingredients. Separate the egg; mix the yolk with the sour milk and stir into the dry ingredients to make a batter. Then add melted butter. Beat the egg white until stiff and dry; fold into the batter. Bake in six cakes on a well greased hot griddle. When bubbles form on top of cakes, turn and cook on the other side. An excessively hot temperature causes the cakes to be hard and tough.

One cup of sweet milk and one level teaspoon baking powder may be used in place of the sour milk and soda. These griddle cakes may be varied by using one-half cup cornmeal or graham flour and one-half cup white flour.

When you are marketing for meat, remember that at least one-half pound of meat as purchased be allowed for each serving, unless chopped or boneless meat is purchased—then three-quarters of a pound of meat will do for two ample servings. It is, of course, impossible to get a nice roast beef small enough for two.

One can, however, purchase a good rib cut of baby beef weighing from four and one-half to five pounds that when carefully roasted, using a very hot or 500 degree F. oven for searing thirty minutes, then reducing the heat to a moderate of 350 degrees F. oven and allowing the meat to roast at this temperature for one and one-half hours, will be well browned and crisp on the outside and still pink all the way through. This roast will provide tempting meat dishes for at least three, perhaps four, meals.

Roast beef, juicy and thinly sliced, is a most acceptable meat for the dinner meal when served with hot potatoes, vegetables, and a salad, served in a tomato or brown sauce with boiled potatoes and vegetables, we have a second satisfying meal.

The remaining bits should be combined with an equal quantity of cold boiled potatoes and cooked vegetables into a tasty hash.

Other meats that young homemakers can use to advantage are neck chops of lamb. Allow two chops for each serving. Remove the vertebrae bone in the center of each chop and skewer with a toothpick or small skewer.

Cook stock from the bone, using a small onion, a bit of parsley, salt and pepper. Brown the neck chop rosette in a hot frying pan. When thoroughly brown, place in a casserole. Strain, season and thicken the stock—there should be at least one cupful. Pour stock over meat. Add additional seasoning in the form of vegetables if desired. Cover casserole and bake in a moderate oven for one hour. A small breast of veal boned and rolled, then pot roasted with plenty of bacon drippings, seasoned with one teaspoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon pepper and one teaspoon chopped parsley will offer meat for two meals.

Round steak offers any number of attractive dishes:

Round Steak en Casserole—Three-fourths pound upper cut round (about one inch thick), three or four small onions, six small carrots, one dozen potato balls, five tablespoons bacon drippings, four tablespoons flour, one-half teaspoon salt, dash of pepper.

Brown vegetables in two tablespoons drippings, then add two cups boiling water or beef broth and cook until vegetables are tender. Remove vegetables and keep hot. Melt the remaining three tablespoons drippings in a sauce pan; add the flour and brown, then add one cup of vegetable liquor, season with salt and pepper. Brown the steak well, place in a buttered casserole. Pour over the sauce with vegetables added. Cover casserole and bake in a moderate oven one-half to three-quarters hour. This one-dish meal will prove particularly popular when the days are cool. A salad, hot muffins, and a peach or apple cobbler baked in the same regulated oven offers an easily prepared, inexpensive dinner for two.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

Expert cooks advise "two ingredients in one"

HERE'S a little cooking secret that adds deliciousness and subtracts expense. Professional bakers, [redacted] makers all know it—and now housewives are learning it. It's this:

Whenever a recipe calls for both milk and sugar, use Condensed Milk (Standard Brand). It gives you the two ingredients in one—fresh, pure, full-cream country milk and finest sugar, blended with a richness and smoothness no home method can equal.

Ordinary bottled milk is 87% water. But Standard Brand Condensed Milk has had most of this water removed. Its percentage of butter fat is more than twice as high as that of bottled milk. This super-richness shows in your cooking!

Standard Brand Condensed Milk makes richer, smoother, creamier puddings, custards, Spanish creams, icings and fillings. It improves hot breads, too—giving them an evenness of texture and crispness of crust you've never known before. For candies it is ideal. And it makes wonderful mayonnaise that never curdles or separates.

Watch this space for delightful recipes, and write to the Borden Company, 350 Madison Ave., New York, for "Condensed Milk and its Uses in Good Cookery"—a complete recipe booklet.

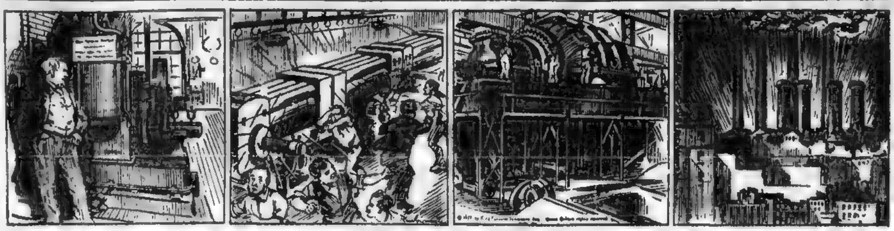
And, by the way—did you know that Standard Brand Condensed Milk will cream-and-sugar your coffee to rich golden deliciousness—at one-half the cost of sugar and cream? Try it! You'll agree with the millions who find their breakfast coffee a new delight because of it...

Get Standard Brand at your grocer's today! Remember—it keeps without ice!

LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

(Authorized by Mr. Edison)

Text by Arthur J. Palmer
Drawings by Frank Kuchenmeister



At 255 and 257 Pearl street, New York, Edison established his first powerhouse, with the exception of the experimental station in Menlo Park. Six "Jumbo" dynamos were installed and New York was ready for its first taste of incandescent electric lighting. The picture shows Edison beside his first improved dynamo.

Everything was ready at old Pearl street. First one engine was started to see how things were going to work, then another was started. What a circus! One engine would stop and the other speed up, and the room was filled with electric flashes. The men ran for their lives. Then Edison stepped forward and shut off the power.

Whether in those early days even Edison ever pictured such a scene as this we do not know. How tiny and weak appears the "Jumbo" dynamo of old Pearl street days beside this giant generator installed in 1926 in the New York powerhouse. It develops 80,000 horsepower and is the most powerful machine on earth.

In all our principal cities the sight of powerhouses pouring forth their smoke stands as a tribute to Edison, who gave the world a new light and made night as livable as day. The giver of such a gift will need no monument beyond his contribution of incandescent electrical illumination.

Fire Opened an Era in Isadora's Life

Isadora was accustomed to hold her dancing classes assisted by her mother and her sister, Mrs. Duncan playing the piano.

On Saint Patrick's Day, March 17, 1899, Fifth avenue was jammed with humanity. Fifty thousand holiday makers lined the thoroughfare in the vicinity of the hotel waiting for the great parade which was to do honor to the great saint and to testify to the healing of a sad breach which had laid open between two great Irish societies of the Metropolis.

AVENUE CROWDED

The parade was to reach that part of Fifth avenue shortly after three o'clock in the afternoon. The city was hilariously happy. The memory of Dewey's glorious deed at Manila was still glowing. America's growth into a world empire was just commencing. Prosperity was in the air.

At three o'clock, distant sounds of music reached the ears of the throng gathered in the streets. The stirring notes reached the group hanging perilously from every window in the hotel front.

Windows and roofs along the avenue were jammed with spectators. Every guest of the Windsor Hotel who had a room facing the avenue was entertaining visitors to the ultimate capacity of the apartment.

The head of the column approached. Police on horseback, a band, the grand marshal, government dignitaries in open carriages, officers of the participating societies, with their huge brocaded green silk sashes of ancient Gaelic design.

Suddenly a shrill cry rent the air. "Fire!"

Someone in an upper window of the hotel had lighted a cigar and carelessly thrown the blazing match out into the open. The match blew into a lower window, touched a fluttering lace curtain with its flame, and in a moment there was a blaze of alarming proportions.

A waiter attempted to beat out the flames with his bare hands, but fate was fighting against him.

SCORES TRAPPED

In the eyes of scores of thousands that hotel went up in a livid sheet of flame. With incredible speed the fire ate from floor to floor, devouring everything in its path. Guests and visitors, unfamiliar with the stairways, groped vainly for a way of escape.

There was not a single fire escape on the long Fifth Avenue front, but the rooms were equipped with long ropes, fastened near the windows, to be used in an emergency of the sort. Very few knew how to use the ropes. Some seized the loose end and jumped, crashing to their death on the pavement. Others slid down their rope until their hands burned to the bone from the friction, and they were forced to let go.

Some jumped for life nets, only to miss. Others, too timid or frightened at such scenes, remained at their windows until the relentless tongues of fire enveloped them.

Seventeen bodies were removed before the eyes of the horror stricken paraders and watchers.

Never had New York seen such a horrifying spectacle, and perhaps never was it to see such another.

Fire fighters and police, spectators and hotel employes performed prodigies of heroism. Rescue after rescue the great audience witnessed; tragedy after tragedy. Many were saved from the flames only to die in agony on sidewalk or in ambulance stretcher.

Almost the only guest of the hotel who was not watching the parade was Isadora Duncan. Her usual class was scheduled for that afternoon, and oblivious of bands and marching throngs she put her twenty or more little tots and larger girls through the steps of the dance. Gladys Vanderbilt, who later became Countess Szechenyi, was one of the class.

A row of chairs stood along one side of the salon. A child stood at the back of each chair, sideways, with one hand stretched out to the side and grasping the top of the chair-back. In time with the music, the children would swing a leg into the air, up, down—up, down, holding their balance by means of the chair.

Then they would turn, grasp the chair with the other hand and swing the other leg, all in unison—up, down—up, down—front, back—front, back. Next, they would face the chair with both hands holding the back. Down to the floor in a squatting position, and then up on the toes. Down, up—down, up.

On and on through their limbering exercises she urged the girls always insisting on a free swing of the limbs and utter relaxation of the body.

Into the absorbed attention of the dancer there finally penetrated the sounds of screams and commotion. The alarm reached her, and the realization that the dread visitor that had left its stern impress upon her childhood, was again clamoring at her door.

SAVES HER FLOCK

Once again, at a critical period in her career, the dread monster hissed out its ominous threat, destroying priceless possessions, but leaving unflurried the calm spirit of the priestess of the dance.

Through smoke, through stifling heat, through panic-mad mobs, Isadora marshalled her little flock, and with the utmost calm, led them, with her mother and sister, to a side street and to safety.

Almost unnoticed, the little band took refuge in the Buckingham hotel nearby.

Meanwhile the work of rescue was going on. Helen Gould, whose palatial home was opposite, installed a temporary hospital in her bed rooms. Tirelessly the devoted woman worked to relieve the agony of the victims. Even when her mansard roof caught fire, she worked on, ministering to the suffering who were being brought in ever increasing numbers.

Fifty persons were severely injured and burned. Eighty were reported missing. Seventeen were known to be dead, and for days the workers were taking additional bodies from the ruins.

Dozens of the leading families of the nation were affected. A brother, sister, niece and sister-in-law of President McKinley were among the rescued. A niece of Andrew Carnegie was among the missing. The wife of the proprietor was killed. Men and women from Boston, Chicago, Washington, San Francisco, in New York on visits, were trapped.

AN OMEN TO ISADORA

Looters got into the smouldering ruins and seized jewels valued at hundreds of thousands of dollars, giving rise to the rumor that the fire had been set so as to give opportunity to robbers to work unsuspected.

To Isadora the fire was an omen. It spelled for her the termination of a certain period in her progress, and the commencement of a new one.

Through all her days, the dancer was a mystic. Events and emotions had a peculiar significance for her. Superstitious, she might have been called. Perhaps, rather, she might be said to have been influenced by sensibilities so finely tuned as to produce reactions different, and often distinctly opposite to what would have been those of an ordinary, prosaic mortal.

(Tomorrow Fred Toye will tell how the Duncans set out in a cattle boat to conquer Europe.)

THE CATSPAW

A Story of Sylvia Bryant, Stenographer, Among the Money Crowd

By ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

Joyce Ackerman, wife of Vance Ackerman, rich broker, appeals to Alexander Ladd, a lawyer, to help her in her battle with Margot Liggett, who has won her husband's affections. Ladd persuades Mrs. Ackerman to install Sylvia Bryant, his stenographer, in her home as social secretary. Stuart Gifford falls in love with her. Sylvia overhears Margot's divorced husband threaten to kill Ackerman. To avert a tragedy Sylvia begs Ackerman to take her to dinner.

Afterward Ackerman is stabbed to death. Ladd tells Sylvia she is in a dangerous position and he will devote himself to the task of getting her out of it. He gives her back her old job in his office with increased pay. Ladd corners Jack Liggett and gives him a chance to escape in return for a confession of guilt. Liggett flees and Sylvia is cleared of suspicion. She leaves Ladd's office, but searches him out when he disappears.

CHAPTER 15.

His voice, the mental attitude behind his words, had, suddenly, altered completely. It was as though something had crumbled. He sensed, as he sat in the half darkness, a figure infinitely pitiable. All that was brash in him had disappeared, instantaneously evaporated.

In her breast, Sylvia felt her heart begin to ache. The impulse to rush to him, to touch him with tenderness was almost irresistible. "Can't you tell me—what's the matter?"

She thought she could see a nerve in his cheek twitching, but the light was so poor that she was probably mistaken.

"I don't know what's the matter with me," he said, hollowly, "I rode a high horse and then—it happened all at once—everything left me. And what remains is . . . not pleasant."

Sylvia rose to go. If she stayed . . . she was afraid . . .

But she would, she knew positively, return. At once . . . tomorrow . . .

When she got home Stuart Gifford was waiting quietly outside the doorway. He took out his watch and showed it to her.

"Ten o'clock! Didn't you know you had a date with me for eight?"

"It slipped my mind," she said, without realizing the effect of the innocent fact.

He looked at her with mounting harshness. "Maybe you'll be kind enough to explain just why a date with a man you're going to marry slipped your mind."

"Don't be angry, please," she urged, quickly, "I had a good reason, Stuart. I want to tell you—I want to talk it over with you."

"I'm willing to listen," he said, coldly.

They decided, instead of going upstairs, to walk over to a . . . staurant. "I'm starved," Sylvia proclaimed. "I didn't realize I had missed my dinner until just now."

"You must have been highly entertained."

But she was too filled with interest in her subject to appreciate his sarcasm. "I've seen Alexander Ladd," she announced.

"You mean you've been out with him—and stood me up?"

"Don't be silly," she told him, impatiently. "I'm sorry I kept you waiting, but you'll understand when I tell you. Stuart, did you ever hear that Mr. Ladd had broken down in a way that he was supposed to be down and out?"

"I've heard it, rumored. Why?"

"Did you ever hear anybody say that—of course it isn't true—did you ever hear that it was commonly supposed that some girl was connected with what happened to him?"

"No, I never heard anything of the kind. What's all this about, anyway?"

Immediately Sylvia Realized That His Anger Was Growing

He listened, first with incredulity and then with indignation to the story of her visit to Alexander Ladd. The direct way, after a sketchy beginning, with which she narrated her experience, filled him with an increasing sense of jealousy.

Almost immediately Sylvia realized that his anger was growing, but there was no help for it. It was not a matter to be obscured by trivial obstacles.

"Something has got to be done about it, Stuart," she said. "After all he did for me, we've got to find some way to get him back on his feet."

"Just exactly what did he ever do for you, Sylvia?"

She was almost moved, for an instant, to tell Stuart Gifford—the man who had failed her in a crisis—how generously, how capably, Alexander Ladd had stood by her; how he had saved her from arrest; how he had become, in fact, an accomplice to the escape of Jack Liggett, who, even now, had never been captured. A fortunate caution stayed her; to have told everything would have humiliated Gifford, would have been a betrayal of Ladd.

"Mr. Ladd did many splendid things for me," she said. "For one thing he got me the position with Mrs. Ackerman—when it was all over he hired me back in his office at an increased salary."

"Quite a hero, isn't he?" Gifford inquired.

"I wish you wouldn't talk that way," she objected. "I know you're irritated, but there's no use being mean. I was thinking coming home that perhaps I might count on you for some help. I've now never cared much for each other but that was in the past and it never was a violent hatred, anyway. Don't you think, Stuart, that if you went down there with me that you, being a man, might have as an influence on him? He has no friends—if someone of your calibr showed an interest in him—"

Stuart Gifford leaned forward across the table, suddenly

"No! Not on your life. Ladd got exactly what we coming to him. He always was a swell head, anyway. Furthermore, I never had any use for him and I never will. And I'll tell you something I want you to keep away from him, too. I want you to promise me right here and now that you'll do nothing more to do with that fellow."

She looked at him, her eyes cool and level. "I wouldn't promise that, Stuart."

"You will, or else."

"Or else what?"

The bitterness that had risen in him gave his face a pallid hue. "I've stood an awful lot from you, Sylvia, and I'm not in a mood to stand much more. I've let you keep yourself lily pure like a little plaster saint—not even a kiss. I'm staking everything I've got on you—I'm going to give you my name in marriage and I think I've got a right to say a little about your hanging around other men. I won't stand for it before marriage and I won't stand for it afterward!"

Sylvia's face flushed and then, slowly, it paled. Against the anger that had begun to flow in a hot tide was the cooling stream of her common sense. She was able—and she was amazed at her own control—to understand something of what Stuart Gifford felt. If he was jealous, reckless in his speech, it was because he had been stung, because his affection made him over-sensitive.

'Are You Proud of Talking to Me That Way?' She Asked

"Are you proud of talking to me that way?" she asked him.

His voice was shaking. "You know I'm not Sylvia. If I didn't care so much for you I wouldn't get so sore—but you can't understand that. I didn't mean to insult you about Ladd, either. I can't stand him but I can see how he might appeal to your sentiment. But don't ask me to go out and pal around him—I simply couldn't do it."

"You don't have to—if that's the way you feel," she said. "I didn't know you were so violent on the subject. I just thought you might be glad of a chance to help."

"If he's broke I'll—be willing to send him a check for your sake dear—"

Sylvia shook her head. Stuart Gifford, she knew, would never be able to share her feelings—the things that were important. And she knew further, that she never could actually find it her heart to love him.

It was a task she dreaded but, as they walked toward her home, she told him that, without any chance of reversal, she had finally decided not to marry him.

Sylvia had the sensation that Stuart Gifford, walking at her side, was a piece of automatic mechanism, so stiffly, so unnaturally, did he move. She dreaded to look at his face, to hear the sound of his voice. While she had been telling him that, at last, she had finally decided not to marry him he had not uttered a word.

There was no feeling, she realized, how he would take it, he was as highly strung, as sensitive, as a violin. She knew him, she fancied better, perhaps, than anyone on earth knew him—yet she could not predict his reaction He might snap, might go to pieces; it was possible he might approach some act of violence. When he spoke, finally she scarcely recognized is voice.

"That's final?"

"It's final, Stuart. I'm sorry—I can't help it. I tried—but things wouldn't work out."

"I counted on you—I'd have bet my life you were on the level with me."

"I'm being on the level with you now. Even if I married you it wouldn't help—I ere'd be a swindle there and you'd recognize it."

He laughed softly, viciously. "I'm afraid I'm not so good at recognizing swindles, Sylvia. I fels for yours."

With an effort she choked down the anger that struggled to rise. "I was fair with you," she tried to convince him.

Love's Kin -:- Pity and Sympathy Are Twin Handmaidens -:-

DRAWN BY Dorothy Fl...

WHERE there's no sympathy, there's no love! For these two are so essential, one to the other, that each alone, means less than nothing. Is there a more glorious jewel in the crown of Motherhood than the sympathetic, understanding love which she sheds around her adored family? Was there ever an artist who could paint a picture lovelier than that of the sweet sympathy existing between childhood playmates? And where can you find a finer, nobler nature than that possessed by the boy whose first thought is never for himself, but for the pup who trustfully holds up the injured paw, sure of love and sympathy and aid.

Even the wordless sympathy expressed by the firm handclasp between two men is a beautiful thing. But above all is the boundless sympathy of true love.

do in mine. But I don't want anything from you, see?" She added timidly, "Do you understand?"

"I'm afraid I don't. I don't even see why you told me—this."

"No, you wouldn't. Becky put up her hand, touching his hair. Then, quickly, she stepped back, saying, "I wouldn't want you to know. You'd only think me a fool."

"I think you are wise beyond your years, Becky," he said.

"Well, and why shouldn't I be? I never had any folks to look after me. And on the other hand how should a fellow like you understand me, or my ideas? Boris told me all about you, see? What a swell family you hail from, and how you lead such a quiet life, and keep off the speedy life and all that. Now you wouldn't understand why that should appeal to a girl like me, would you?"

"Why not, Becky?"

"Why, look at me. I mean look at the difference. I grew up in what you call the slums. My ma wore a shawl over her head and slaved herself to death for us kids and for Pa. He was a good looking lad, but useless. Still, all the same every woman in our street was crazy over Jerry McCloskey, including me, though he used to near break every bone in my body when he got mad. Well, everything has its bright side as they say and I got my first perfessional engagement for knowing how to fall when I was kicked."

Estabrook made a caustic remark, and Becky laughed uneasily.

"There's another thing you wouldn't savvy," she resumed "We're touches—because we got to fight our way up. We got different standards, you might say. When I love a man, Mr. Estabrook, I won't care what he does. He'll be my man, and I'll take him on for better or worse, for what he is, good or bad, and not for what a lotta pretty stories tell me a gentleman ought to be."

"Don't you think you could love a gentleman, Becky?"

"Jiminy. Long pause.

"I guess we don't pick who we love," Becky said in a smothered voice. Then, more vigorously: "What'd there be in it anyhow but pain and misery?" she asked. "Believe reminded morning, noon and night what I was and where I came from."

"You could change, Becky. And there would be advantages, beautiful clothes, a home of your own, money to spend . . ."

"Ambrose, you're an awful kid yet. When you fall in love those things don't seem to count much." She hesitated. Went on. "There's a time, you know, when too much money can act as a wall instead of a ladder."

Before Estabrook could frame an answer Boris Abelard joined them Through his monocle he looked from one to the other, as if in surprise Then he spoke briskly to Becky.

"So-so here you are, with our own Sir Galahad. I've been s-s-searching ing high and low for you The crowd's getting stale, and we want some of y-your songs

"All right, kid, sorry I didn't know it sooner," said Becky, and hurried out, followed by the two men, Abelard looking taller tanner paler than ever, Estabrook by contrast, giving an impression of immense strength with his stolid, muscular brownness.

In a far corner of the studio, Estabrook found a vacant armchair, and leaned in it, chin cupped in his hand.

The scene had changed during his absence. The dancing had ceased. Men and women had separated into couples and were reclining lazily on couches and arm chairs, even on the floor.

The rough cream-colored walls formed a fitting background for the gowns and bare shoulders of the women, jewels at wrist and throat, glasses held filled with amber or crimson liquids caught the glitter of light from above, and reflected tiny, multi-colored rays. Thin scarves of smoke, blue and mauve and silver gray, curled and floated toward the ceiling. Voices were hushed and an expectant silence, the silence of jaded people who are easily bored, easily wearied in their eternal search for new sensations, brooded over the room.

The band struck up a jazz tune, and Becky, more than ever like a scarlet flame in her short dress, moved out into the small floor space, lithe, sinuous, in the discordant, disturbing rhythm of the music, her voice spread itself upon the room, tangible, physical as a human presence. Her supple body moved provocatively to the irregular syncopation of the popular Blues.

And her voice caught the spirit of her body, so that it seemed to rise and fall, to sway and quiver and twitch. A shudder of interest ran across the weary group. At the end of the first song there was a burst of applause, of shouting.

A man and woman next to Estabrook in the shadowy corner kissed each other, unconscious of the audience. The room stirred with a faint ripple of laughter The musicians struck up another tune.

Song after song with dancing and without, Becky sang, her voice changing with each, adapting some new character for every new lyric. And then, in a small silence, Estabrook heard the voice of their host.

"May we have w-some of your Irish B-ballads, my dear?"

Clapping of hands. Stillness. Estabrook looked steadily at Becky, and Becky returned the glance.

She was standing quietly, her arms limp at her sides, her red dress limp, too, a little pathetic. So she sang, standing quietly there, in a voice soft and infinitely sweet. Sang with her eyes locked in Estabrook's eyes, so that she appeared to sing for him alone, and so that he forgot the crowded studio, forgot the wine, the jewels, the tawdriness, and was aware of nothing but a poignant voice, singing to his heart.

So Becky sang a little, lilting song. She sang:

"I know where I'm going,
I know who's going with me,
I know who I love,
But the dear knows who I'll marry."

"Feather beds are soft,
Painted rooms are bonny;
But I'd leave them all
To go with my love Johnny . . ."

The Good News Is Out

Ann told Polly and Polly told me after I ruined an afternoon for her, moaning about the new Fur Coat I thought I was going to have until some bears trampled all over father's pet stocks. The thing to do is to get your old Fur Coat from storage and rush with it to Lehrburger & Asher's, at the corner of Chauncy and Bedford streets. They have the cleverest way of remodeling it into an absolutely last minute style. In fact, you can choose one of the gorgeous new coats from their display as a model and they'll copy its features. And the cost won't bother the most poverty stricken parent Polly says to do it now—before they're rushed with work.—Advertisement.

A $40,000,000 PLANT

Behind Budweiser Real Hop Malt Syrup is the finest plant of its kind in the world, a $40,000,000 structure comprising more than 110 separate buildings and covering more than 70 city blocks. A million-dollar unit is devoted just to sorting, grading, cleaning and malting the natural barley grains.

This entire plant is designed, built and equipped for malting. Facilities for the proper storage of barleys and hops are provided. Every operation is done by automatic machines built to standards set by Anheuser-Busch. And every step of manufacture is under the watchful guidance of the world's foremost maltsters.

It takes a plant like this—an organization like that of Anheuser-Busch—and the experience of Anheuser-Busch—to produce a malt as good as Budweiser Real Hop Malt Syrup. Do you know of any other place on earth where such a combination can be found?

WHO EVER DREAMED IT COULD END THIS WAY

You will recall (and if you do not, please leave the room) that Maurine and her lollypop, Vly Dangerfield, were seated in the parlor on Christmas Eve after a separation of three years. There we left them. You were a pretty picture, Maurine, as you sat squirming in the firelight's glow!

Maurine says—

"I bowed my head nor dared his gaze to meet.
On cheek and brow I felt the red blood burn,
And strong emotion strangled speech.

The old light was in her eyes again.

He rose
And came and knelt beside me.
'Sweet! My sweet!'
He murmured softly, 'Goodness only knows
How well I loved you seven years [illegible]
If you but knew my anguish and my grief,
When your own acts* forced the belief
That I was but your plaything and your toy.
Yet from his lips I since have learned that Roy
Held no place nearer than a friend and brother
Before all heaven and the angel mother
Of this sweet child that slumbers on your heart,
Maurine, Maurine, I claim you for my wife—
Mine own, forever, until we end this life!"

It would be unfitting to comment further. Let us tiptoe away for the moment, leaving these two young people enjoy their Christmas.

South is the dealer. What is the proper bidding and play?

In the next issue Mr. Whitehead will explain the salient points in the bidding and play of the above hand. Fill out your own chart and compare it with his method.

These hands must not be bid or played "Double Dummy," i.e., as though all four hands were exposed.

Yesterday's Hand as Played by Mr. Whitehead

Salient Points of the Play

Tricks 2 and 3. If the adverse trumps are evenly divided, Declarer, after exhausting them, can lay down his hand and claim a Small Slam, conceding a Diamond trick. With nine cards of a suit in two hands, the distribution of the remaining four is more often 3-1 than 2-2. Nevertheless with nine cards to the Ace-King, it is advisable, except in special cases, to play for the drop of the Queen rather than to finesse, even when a finesse is possible, which is not the case in this instance. While the Queen may be one of three, or even of four cards, it may also be a singleton or one of two cards, and the chances favor its drop in two rounds. Declarer takes two rounds of trumps and the Queen does not fall.

Trick 4. Declarer here gives further thought to his play with a view to making a Small Slam notwithstanding the trump trick that the adversaries must take. If South's initial lead was from five Diamonds, North could have held but two originally, in which case Declarer sees that he can still make a Slam. By eliminating both Spades and Clubs from his own hand and Dummy's, Declarer can put North in the lead with a trump and force the play by him of either a Spade or Club, upon which the losing Diamond can be discarded. Declarer plays accordingly, and finding North without a third Diamond to lead, makes the Small Slam.

Mr. Whitehead will answer questions concerning your Bridge problems. Write to him care of this paper, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope.

RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

EARTH'S wealth is but a transient thing, and flits as soon away upon as blithe and swift a wing as lark or robin gay. Who counts his hoarded coins tonight, tomorrow may know want; in place of gold, so shining bright, find hunger, grim and gaunt. No man can ever put his faith in riches he has won, for these may vanish like a wraith before the morning sun But there is wealth more rare than gold that man may keep always, and I have riches I can hold through all life's changeful maze; such riches as my spirit finds in dawn and sunset seas, in singing voices in the winds; in hoary arch of trees. I can not be a beggar, quite (however poor I seem), as long as on the field of night I see the stars a-gleam.

Children Cry For

Fletcher's

CASTORIA

The Young Mother.

The ills of infants and children should be so well known to the youngest of mothers that a reminder or a repetition of the symptoms of illness seems unnecessary, yet there are some mothers who overlook a feverish condition, a little colic, or a disposition to be irritable. If not corrected they may lead to serious sickness. And to correct them, to bring Baby back to its happy self, is so easy by the use of Castoria—a medicine prepared just for infants and children. It will regulate the bowels (not force them), and digestion and so bring quiet and rest.

Fletcher's Castoria has been doing this for over 30 years; regulating the stomach and bowels of infants and children. It has replaced the nauseating Castor Oil, so-called Soothing Syrups, poisonous Paregoric and other vicious concoctions in the homes of true and honest mothers—mothers who love their children.

Those mothers will give their babies foods and medicines especially prepared for infants and children.

To avoid imitations, always look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Proven directions on each package. Physicians everywhere recommend it.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS:

By HELEN ROWLAND.

MY Daughter, wit attracteth the ear and Titian hair catcheth the eye.

But a woman who can smile and look INSCRUTABLE taketh hold on the imagination, and is insidious, like rare wine.

When other women pursue a man, be not tempted, but stand discreetly aside.

For when he seeketh to dodge them, he shall peradventure flee unto THINE arms for safety and consolation.

Seek not to bind a man with vows and promises, oh Foolish One!

For a promise turneth a privilege into a duty and transformeth a caress from a thrilling novelty into a daily necessity.

Scorn not the choice of thy girl friend, in the husband-market, saying, "What could she SEE in him?"

For, lo, when thou art dazzled by the moonlight in his eyes, thou shalt see beauty in the smile of ANY man, and perceive brilliance in his words. Yea, under the kindly radiance of the lovelight, almost anything in tweeds looketh like a Prince Charming.

Verily, in the daily communion of matrimony, a cheerful disposition is more to be desired than a cleft chin and a curling forelock, and a sense of humor more comforting than a New England conscience.

Think not to KNOW a man before marriage.

For how shall thou have ANY man, until thou hast shared his breakfast, his newspaper, his troubles and his income; until thou hast soothed his headaches and his grouches; applied the salve to his sunburned shoulders, and beheld him when he slept with his mouth open, and his Adam's apple was bared and shining.

Sigh not after a heart-collector made in the image of a moving-picture actor.

For a practiced lover may be thrilling in the days of courtship and petting; but after marriage, he shall peradventure KEEP UP his practice. And an artist at any work must ever find NEW inspiration for his "ART."

But a plain-faced youth with a paying job and a flivver is not to be despised because he lacketh a classic profile and a fancy "line."

Verily, verily, she that heedeth my wisdom, shall find the short-cut to happiness; but she that saith "Tisha!" shall follow many detours, and her way shall be beset with pitfalls SELAH!

MEDBURY SAYS---

By JOHN P. MEDBURY.

ACCORDING to an unofficial census, there are over a million egotists in this country. An egotist is a man who's so satisfied with himself that he goes out to the zoo and congratulates the stork.

ONE fellow was so conceited he thought he did his folks a favor by being born.

HE used to talk in his sleep and then listen for the applause.

HE married a woman with insomnia so that she could lie awake and clap.

HE spends half the night taking bows.

HE thinks his voice is so wonderful that he had phonograph records made of his cough.

HIS mind is so narrow he could wear a razor blade for a hat.

HE'S sorry now that he wasn't born triplets, has even too smart to be twins.

BUT after looking him over, it's easy to see that his mother and father have practically no children.

IF he's a self-made man, he must have encountered labor troubles

HE probably grew during a strike

IF they encountered him in the last census, he was probably one of the ciphers.

EVERY thought is of himself, which gives him practically nothing to think about.

HE'S the kind of a fellow who's so conceited that he takes a bunch of photographs to the movie with him so that he can look at his own pictures.

HE always gazes into two looking glasses. His figures he's too handsome for one mirror.

HE intended to set the world on fire, but somebody stole his matches.

HE'D like to do something big, but he couldn't even kick a mouse in the shins.

IT'S foolish to be egotistical. If you're really great, people are bound to admit it, and if they don't, then you are wise enough.

JACK HOPES GENE WILL TRY K.O.

Dempsey Doesn't Believe the Stories Are True, but He Hopes Gene is Sincere

By GEORGE BARRY.

Chicago, Sept. 21.—"I hope he doesn't regain his intellectual temper and change his mind," was Jack Dempsey's comment today concerning stories that Gene Tunney was all frothed up and would go out fighting with the bell on Thursday night.

"I hope it, but I don't believe it," added the ex-champion.

But word from Tunney camp insists that it is all true, that Tunney will step into Dempsey and try to knock him out instead of making it a boxing match.

Dempsey's manager, Leo P. Flynn, was greatly interested in the report. Flynn said:

"We certainly hope Mr. Tunney will check his bicycle outside the ring and really fight Dempsey.

"If he comes fighting into Dempsey that bottle will be short—and it also will be sweet for the fellows who bet that Dempsey will nail him in one or two rounds. No man ever lived who could slug it with Dempsey and stand up—and Tunney is a million miles away from being an exception.

"He can't hit like Dempsey, he can't take it like Dempsey and I have a funny little notion that when the going gets rough he won't show the dauntless courage of Dempsey.

"You see, I know a little something about that Tunney. I could write a book about him. But what good would it do me, because I couldn't get the book printed before next week and by that time Tunney will be just one of those ex-champion things."

Tunney Goes Into Complete Seclusion

Lake Villa, Ill., Sept. 21 (I.N.S.)—Gene Tunney went into complete seclusion today. He instructed members of his staff that he wanted to be left strictly alone between now and tomorrow night, when he steps into the ring against Jack Dempsey at Soldier Field.

The guard around the camp has been doubled and none, without a pass personally signed by Tunney, is allowed through the uniformed lines.

The champion packed his sixteen ounce training gloves away yesterday afternoon after a light workout, and announced that he was "ready for Dempsey."

This morning Tunney arose, donned his old clothes and did three miles on the roads surrounding the Cedar Crest Country Club. He spent the rest of the day here with friends and apparently was in the highest of spirits.

Gene will spend tonight here and will motor to Chicago tomorrow noon. His baggage has been shipped ahead to a Chicago hotel, where, after weighing in at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, he will retire to sleep until the time of his bout with Dempsey at 9:30 tomorrow night.

Inside Golf

By Chester Horton

The use of a circle of string on the hitting area for the golf shot has revealed that the so-called habit of looking up from the golf ball has ramifications not heretofore suspected by players. These are due chiefly to the influence of what we might call the distance ahead—the yardage wanted, the desire to be far on the shot, a trap or a tree in the distance, etc. These influences are so strong in their pull against the mind that often they cause the player actually to shift his stance while preparing for a shot. They will make him "creep" on the ball forward or backward, while I have actually seen players creep forward with one foot while getting set for a shot, changing their position from a square to an open or from square to a closed stance. These actions resulted wholly, I am convinced, from the influence of things in the distance. When the average player tries to execute a shot while under such influence he quite naturally "looks up," as the saying is. What these players are really up against is one of the underlying fundamentals of good golf, and how to conquer this fundamental will be the object of succeeding articles.

HEARST SHOOTS PRAISED BY WAR DEPT.

"Rifle competition for Hearst trophies has War Department approval and heavy support. Corps area commanders directed to co-operate. Arrangement as in previous years, details being arranged through commanding general of Sixth Corps Area. These competitions of great value."

Major-General Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff of the United States Army, gave official approval of the William Randolph Hearst trophy matches for 1926-1927 in the above telegram to the Hearst newspapers. This word gives the matches the official stamp of the War Department and assures the co-operation, as in previous meets, of the facilities at the command of the army. General Summerall's statement at the end of the telegram gives his estimate of the value of these matches to the nation as a whole.

As indicated in this message, the details of the national rifle competition are being worked out under the direction of Major-General William Lassiter, commanding the Sixth Corps Area.

Because of the large number of entries in the last competition for the William Randolph Hearst trophies, the matches will be sectionalized this year, trophies being awarded winning R. O. T. C. units in colleges and universities, high schools and military academies in each section. There will be Eastern, Western, Middle Western and Southern divisions.

The skill displayed in previous matches has made it necessary to design new targets which will permit finer distinctions in the gauging of shots. This will not make the shooting more difficult for contesting units, but will enable expert riflemen to make the most of their abilities to handle firearms with accuracy.

HARVARD A'S DEFEAT SUBS

By TED LYNCH.

In the first scrimmage of the year for the Harvard football squad which was held in the Stadium this morning, the Crimson varsity played a practice game with Jimmie Knox's second team and rolled up 35 points to the scrubs' nothing.

Horween employed all of his three first string teams and each one was successful in its attack against the Seconds. The outstanding player of the scrap was Joe Crosby, the star of the 1925 season and of the "Crosby Ineligibles" last Fall.

Crosby plunged through tackle for the varsity's first score after a sustained march of 45 yards, and Tom Moore kicked the goal. Two points were quickly added when Combs recovered a scrub fumble on the 25-yard line. Guarnaccia made 20 yards, but the Seconds held and gained possession of the ball. On the first play Dick O'Connell nailed the ball carrier behind his own line for a safety.

Team B of the varsity was then injected into the fray and a forty-three-yard march resulted in another touchdown, Sam Burns carrying. Crosby then ripped off gains of twenty, eight, eleven and nine yards, the latter accounting for another score. Shortly after, Combs intercepted a scrub pass and raced twenty yards to tally, with Howie Burns booting the point after touchdown.

Team C continued the attack and the final score was made by Schwentker, with Bill Jones kicking the point.

Dempsey's Actions Anger Judge

Chicago, Sept. 21 (A.P.)—Conviction that the Gene Tunney-Jack Dempsey heavyweight championship fight last year in Philadelphia was in violation of an Indiana writ enjoining Dempsey from meeting anyone until he had fought Harry Wills was voiced today by Judge Harry Fisher, who presided at a renewal of the Coliseum Club's suit to force an accounting with Dempsey for alleged contract violation.

The court sharply criticized the action and attitude of Dempsey and his counsel in refusing to post a $100,000 bond as suggested yesterday by Judge Fisher, which would have permitted the court to continue the hearing until after tomorrow night's Tunney-Dempsey fight in Soldiers' Field.

"I think the decision not to give the bond is ill advised and the defendant is committing a serious mistake," warned the judge.

Marconi's Bride

There IS Dignity in a Long Train

A BEAUTIFUL DRESS

This is the former Countess Maria Cristina Bezzi-Scali, now Madame Guglielmo Marconi, as she appeared in her wedding gown.

The lady is very beautiful, and the gown is unquestionably, as a good many youthful Americans would put it, "SOME wedding gown."

The bride of the great Italian inventor, Marconi, interests everybody, and is a lovely woman to look upon. Thousands of young American girls will be interested in this romantic dress and in the unusually long train.

It certainly lends dignity to a woman, and queens and empresses and the "great" of the world have made it a habit since the most ancient times to wear long, dragging skirts.

In our day, we have learned that while long trains are beautiful and perhaps dignified, they also collect germs and dust, and for life in general, apart from wedding days, we have got rid of them.

However, we have gone a little too far in the other direction, some of us, and forgotten that a reasonable length of skirt is necessary FOR MODESTY.

Fighting Men

Counterfeit and Genuine

Jack Dempsey, one of the roughnecks about to contest for the championship in the national American sport of prize-fighting, issues a letter attacking the other contender.

This paper would think that a battling bruiser who lives in the peculiarly frail and fragile kind of a glass house which Dempsey inhabits would refrain from throwing stones.

Some one might throw a stone in return and recall the fact that Dempsey, with all his bravado and brutality in the ring, did not have enough genuine bravery to go to the front during the war when other men of his age and able-bodiedness were fighting for their country.

Prize-fighting is a debased and demoralizing kind of sport but with all that even the low-brows who support these brutal and brutalizing contests have enough self-respect to prefer to see the championship of their class and kind held by a man who had enough physical courage and patriotic spirit to go to the front when his country needed genuine fighting men.

Honor

Appeal to It Beats the Club

The new way of government with business is shown by the Federal Trade Commission calling representatives of the film industry—picture makers and picture exhibitors—to a conference in New York next month to work out a set of trade principles.

Long ago everybody except Uncle Sam knew you could catch more flies with sugar than with vinegar. He tried cracking the legal whip, but never got very far beyond spending money and roiling tempers.

Now he is on a different tack, and is finding that most business men want to be fair, and will point the way how if put on honor.

Nothing equals a round table as a clearing place of misunderstandings and grievances.

FOUR MEN WHO BEAR SELVES MODESTLY

By DR. FRANK CRANE

MODESTY is one of the chief characteristics of true greatness. A great man can have no further commendation or no greater bid for popularity than to have it said that he is modest.

This has been a characteristic of President Coolidge. He has avoided the spotlight and attended to the serious duties of his office with becoming humility. His recent word that he did not choose to run for President again should be taken at its face value. It is the solemn dictum of a man who, having achieved the acme of his popularity, desires to step aside. The country has prospered tremendously under his administration, but he is harboring no delusion that he is the only man who can occupy the exalted position of President.

Another man who is winning all kinds of plaudits and reaping all sorts of popularity from his becoming modesty is the Prince of Wales. Of course he deserves no credit for being born the son of a king, but he does deserve credit for not slopping over. He has managed to say the right thing at the right time and to conduct himself with becoming decorum in whatever limelight he may be placed. While he is not to be credited with the distinction of being born to royalty, he is entitled to the distinction of caring for the duties of this superior place as he should. He is well liked not only throughout the British Dominions, but in the United States and elsewhere throughout the world.

To those who have met Jack Dempsey personally he has been a surprise. They expected the Manassa mauler to look like a bruiser. They were surprised to find him gentle, well liked by everybody and courteous. His form is slim and his manner is that of a gentleman. He is affectionate in his family relations and altogether those who know him are not envious of his fame.

The fourth modest man that has recently loomed in the horizon has been Lindbergh. After achieving a feat that brought him the plaudits of kings and nations everywhere he apparently was not possessed of the idea that he was a superman, but modestly restrained his claims to those of a flying man. He had crossed the ocean alone in a flying plane, but did not suppose that because he had done a stunt with his machine in the air he could do every other kind of thing. It is with a feeling of pride that the people of the country read of the way he demeaned himself in France and in Great Britain and in connection with the officials of this country. As far as we know, he has made no enemies, for the one thing that makes an enemy is over weaning egotism.

America is justly proud of these four men and principally because they are not proud of themselves especially.

BOSTON DAY BY DAY

As a means of raising funds to outfit Troop 6, Boy Scouts of America, comprising boys in the rugby section of Hyde Park, in order that they may start a drum and bugle corps, Lieutenant John H. Haskins, leader of the 10th Regiment, M. N. G., Band, gave band concerts every Friday evening during the Summer months at Smith Playground, Hyde Park. The band concerts were free, but the Boy Scouts went among the audience and sold tonics and ice cream. William J. Boudreau, Hyde Park's booster, was actively engaged in the movement.

A committee has been formed among Hyde Park's prominent citizens to get the boys interested in sports. The committee is backing John Lara, head of the playground branch of the Park and Recreation Department, who has assigned Thomas A. Phelan, director of the Hyde Park centre, to have the boys of the district get together and form twenty-four ball teams to make up a league, with bats, balls and gloves furnished by the city officials.

Six months after his transfer to the Hyde Park police station, Patrolman George McCaffrey, well-known police veterna who was attached to former District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien's office, doing special duty, is now doing street duty in that part of Boston. Patrolman McCaffrey, shortly after his transfer last January, went on his vacation and then he became ill, and he was on a leave of absence until a few days ago.

Chief Warren C. Totty of the Dedham police has received a letter from the Dedham Board of Selectmen in which they commend Patrolman Edward Flannagan for the efficient manner in which he performs his duty. They request Chief Totty to post the letter at police headquarters. The letter is the result of the detective work of Officer Flannagan, who was responsible for running down hen thieves that gave the people of Dedham considerable trouble. He also cleaned up several breaks that bothered the police department for some time. Officer Flannagan was summoned before the board and was commended by Messrs. Beckford, Gates and Doggett.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

DO you lose hope sometimes? Do you say—"Oh what's the use of trying to fool myself? Life doesn't mean anything. There's no purpose in it, no justice or lasting beauty. Science proves that it's just an endless spawning and dying and that men are of no more importance than slugs. We haven't the slightest proof of God or of any life after death. We're just so much meat and bone, and when we die, we die—"

Have you said that to yourself in a sudden surge of black despair?

The following words may help you. They were written by another desperate man very long ago—a man who had less to keep his faith alive than you have. He had not seen time and space annihilated by radio and aeroplane as you have. He had not seen man's material body analyzed in terms of pure force—the electron. The world was actually nothing but mud and man nothing but meat, to Solomon. And yet, even in his ignorance, he found a miracle that convinced him that there was a God, a Plan, a deathless Purpose. His found that miracle in himself, in his own spirit, and he wrote—

"THE SPIRIT OF MAN IS THE CANDLE OF THE LORD SEARCHING ALL THE INWARD PARTS OF THE BELLY." — Proverbs XX., 27.

Solomon used that word belly both literally and symbolically. He was thinking both of the actual body and of the deeds of the body. He was thinking of all the foolishness he had been led into by that body of his—all the greed and lust and sloth and hate. He was thinking, as he often thought, that his body was little better than the body of any other animal. And how it must die and rot some day as the bodies of beasts die and rot.

As he thought that, I suppose the same despair fell on Solomon which falls on you and me when we think of death. But even as he despaired, he thought of something else that had always sustained him when his body failed him—something that has always seemed most immortal when he was most mortal—his spirit.

That spirit which had always been in his body but had somehow been apart from its sin and suffering—which had worshipped beauty even while the rest of him wallowed in ugliness, which had kept the faith even when his body betrayed him—which had fought when the rest of him surrendered, and glowed when the rest of him went dark—

And in a sudden flash of vision he cried—"Man's spirit is the candle of the Lord!"

He did not know what the Lord's purpose might be for men, whether there was any life after the grave.

But he knew that right here in life, something radiant and steadfast moved through the darkness of man's life. And he felt that if the mysterious, radiancy could survive the horror and uncertainty of life surely death could not prevail against it.

Does that comfort you?
